Sheila Southerly reported to me of a lovely Christmas colorful scene she was treated to behind her house. The hemlock branches were loaded with new snow, and a pair of cardinals lent their scarlet presence to complete the color scheme. She has not seen any cardinals for years, and with the death of her cat and moving her new bird feeder to a more sheltered location, she now has them back again. My mother has them at her bird feeder too.

I used to enjoy the extension of the holidays, as we used to celebrate Hanukkah as well as Christmas. That involved getting eight more presents for each of my three girls. The Jewish holiday was in celebration of a miracle during the occupation of Jerusalem by a foreign power and the temple only had enough lamp oil for one day, but it lasted for eight days. I wish that miracle would reappear with heating oil. I dread running my furnace at all because it is a sure thing that the worst cold is yet to come. I am still trying to pay off my first tank of oil and I dread having to go into debt for anthousand dollars, which is how much the first filling of my tank cost.

I plunged into deep depression thinking about Christmas past. When my children were little and when I was just a kid, we never worried about the price of heating oil or had a long therapy list. There were not many worries involved in my childhood's December, except for the time when my father was in the hospital for his first heart attack and in 1960 when my Mother had to stay in a Cumberland hospital for over a month after Scott arrived. We children were happy and safe in the care of both of their grandparents, but we did miss her very much.

Dear Friends and Neighbors:

In the past few weeks, representatives of Friends of Backbone Mountain have focused upon county government because of our concerns about the wind industry, first meeting at some length with key staff to the commissioners and later, in a three hour session, with the county's commissioners themselves. Our purpose was three-fold:

- to provide local government officials with our documentation about the wind industry and answer any questions
- to investigate and then challenge the appropriateness of the actions taken by county government vis-à-vis the wind industry over the last two years;
- to request the support of government officials-and specifically the county's commissioners-by asking them to reconsider their efforts on behalf of the wind industry, particularly in light of the values expressed in the county's recent Heritage Plan and the negative economic and civic impacts which will ensue if windplants are constructed in Garrett County.

The Maryland Public Service Commission (MDPSC) is the agency responsible for approving any power-generation plant in the state. The MDPSC normally requires a two or three year process in order to adjudicate a variety of complex issues which typically flow from any large power generating facility. An expedited review limits the review process to a few months, which when combined with the failure of the MDPSC to notify adjacent land owners about its hearings into the permit requests to build wind factories, prevents broad public inquiry and forecloses opinions altogether by those most affected. By sending their endorsement for an expedited review of two windplants, which would erect nearly 100 forty-story turbines atop fifteen miles of the state's highest ridge, Backbone Mountain, we believe the commissioners placed many people and much property at risk in Pleasant Valley.

In defense of their actions, the commissioners said there was little they could do to constrain wind developers, and offered the opinions expressed in a letter from the county's attorney, Mike Getty, as justification for their actions. However, even a casual reading of that letter suggests there is much the commissioners could have done-and still can do. Approval of power plant applications in this state is to a considerable extent a political process. As the executive authority for the county polity, the commissioners chose to support the wind industry; however, they could-and we believe should-have chosen otherwise.

WHAT THE COMMISSIONERS HAVE DONE

Without informing residents about the wind industry's scope and purpose, the county commissioners more than a year ago officially asked the MDPSC for an expedited review, recommending the agency set aside its regular-legally required-practice of conducting a lengthy examination of environmental and economic implications, including assessing the impact upon property values and living conditions in Pleasant Valley wrought by the construction of 67 400-ft. wind turbines atop Backbone Mountain. Based at least in part on that request, the MDPSC waived its usual investigative procedures and, following an expedited hearing with virtually no notice to adjoining landowners, granted a permit to an outside investor to build a massive wind factory. The legality of that permit is now being challenged in the Maryland Court of Appeals-and may be appealed further. Keep in mind this was a precedent-setting review, the first for a windplant in Maryland-but all done in the blink of the regulatory agency's eye.

Before and during this application process—again without systematically seeking opinion from adjoining Pleasant Valley landowners or the Garrett County public-representatives of county government conducted private meetings and countless discussions with the applicant, Clipper Windpower, Inc.

More recently, a second applicant-Synergics-approached the commissioners privately and sought their formal endorsement for another 24 turbine windplant and a waiver of the regular MDPSC review period. Once again, the commissioners did just as they were asked and sent yet another letter to the MDPSC requesting an expedited review of the Synergics application, the effect of which would limit the scope of inquiry significantly. By this time many residents had made known their concerns about the effect of wind factories on Pleasant Valley property values and living conditions. Nonetheless, the commissioners failed to act upon this local concern and instead supported the outside investors' request.

WHAT THE COMMISSIONERS SHOULD HAVE DONE

Under the Maryland Annotated Code, Article 66B, section 401, the commissioners have the authority-and obligation as elected officials—to consider land use regulation to prevent any adverse consequences to property values and living conditions for citizens of Garrett County. That authority includes regulation of the height as well as the size, use, lighting, sound, and location of any proposed wind turbines. By ignoring those obligations and the concerns posed by residents from Pleasant Valley and others to the effect that property values would be adversely impacted and quality of life would be reduced, the commissioners placed in jeopardy much this county holds dear.

The commissioners should have declared a study period of their own. Specifically, the commissioners have the legal authority to declare a moratorium delaying any construction of wind turbines until a thorough study of environmental and economic impacts, including those on land values and living conditions, is conducted. INSTEAD, THE COMMISSIONERS CHOSE TO JOIN FORCES WITH OUTSIDE INVESTORS IN ASKING FOR AN EXPEDITED REVIEW BY THE MDPSC WHERE THE ONLY CONCERNS EXPRESSED ABOUT PROPERTY VALUES AND QUALITY OF LIFE WERE THOSE OF THE WIND) DEVELOPER-AND HE OF COURSE STATED THERE WERE NO SUCH ADVERSE

Using their land-use authority, the commissioners should have written the MDPSC asking for time in which to study and weigh all the evidence, not just the claims of the wind developer. During this study period, the commissioners should have systematically sought the input of local residents about their views on constructing huge wind factories atop Backbone Mountain. The questions raised should have motivated them to retain expert analysis, gathering information and sharing it in open hearings. Only after considering the results from this process should the commissioners have written anything to the MDPSC. By passing off this responsibility to the state regulatory agency, even urging that agency to short-circuit its own investigative responsibilities, the commissioners have acted irresponsibly, skirting their legal obligations to protect citizens and their property. At the very least they should have written the MDPSC to request a full review of the application. If the county, using the current Comprehensive Development Plan, can create a county-wide subdivision ordinance, it certainly can fashion regulations for other kinds of development like windplants.

The commissioners are not helpless in the face of industry pressures. Garrett County's attorney makes clear that the commissioners have every right-even an obligation-to constrain problematic development, including wind facilities incompatible with the county's natural heritage which jeopardize the value of resident property and diminish the quiet enjoyment of it. The commissioners can hold public hearings and conduct expert analysis. They can act consistently so that they don't give mixed messages to developers and citizens. For example, when they approve a county heritage plan, they should not also endorse projects that sabotage it (which they have). They can ask the MDPSC for time to examine and implement appropriate local siting standards for power plants—and then insist that the MDPSC honor those standards. They can also rescind their earlier endorsements of all wind projects, asking the MDPSC to conduct a full review. Unless they do so, they will have abandoned the residents and property owners along Backbone Mountain and in Pleasant Valley to the caprice of irresponsible developers.

We feel county government should account for its strident support of the wind industry here. There are hundreds of people who have expressed concern about this issue, stating they want an opportunity to meet with the commissioners and others in county government in order to hear them defend their actions. Consequently, we will sponsor an evening meeting at a place able to accommodate large numbers of people-and invite the commissioners and their staff to attend. Look for announcements about this meeting soon.

> Happy Holidays! Sincerely, Eric Tribbey

Chamber Seeks Pillow Donations For U.S. Soldiers

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a "Pillows for Patriots" donation campaign, designed to provide pillows to soldiers in Iraq. Businesses interested in participating should deliver their donations of new pillows to the chamber's Mc-Henry office by Friday, Jan.

"Soldiers on the front line in Iraq have very little of the everyday necessities we take for granted," said chamber president Charlie Ross. "The front line group sleeps on cots and does not have pillows. It has been brought to our attention by a fellow chamber member that a group of Army soldiers with a local connecbile Association (AAA) is land during the Christmas-New Year's holiday, reflecting a rise in travel nationwide that will send nearly 63 million Americans 50 miles or more from home. In Maryland, approximately one million people are expected to travel on the road, while an estimated 183,000 people will travel by air, according to a just-released AAA survey.

AAA, the nation's largest leisure travel organization, has released the findings of its survey, conducted by the Travel Industry Association of America, that shows nearly 63 million Americans will travel 50 miles or more for the Christmas-

The Mid-Atlantic chapter New Year's holiday- about of the American Automo- two million more than in 2003. Increased consumer predicting record numbers confidence as well as of travelers through Mary-slightly lower hotel rates and expanded service by discount airlines will make holiday travel in 2004 more affordable than in 2003.

For example, a fournight vacation for a family of four (including air, car rental, and "Three Diamond" hotel accommodations) will be about $43 less this year, compared to last. Gas prices are 37 cents per gallon higher than they were last year at this time, but have declined an average13 cents nationwide in the past month. The AAA poll also shows a five percent rise in the number of travelers who plan to take trains, buses or other modes of transportation.

'What makes this holiday period different from last is the fact that Christmas and New Year's are both on Saturday, narrowing the travel window to 11 days," said Chuck Jackson, Public and Government Relations manager for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "No matter what day of the week peo-

AND THE IMPROVEMENTS THEREON situated in Allegany County, Maryland, and in Garrett County, Maryland, and more particularly described on Exhibit A to the aforereferenced Deed of Trust (and in the Deed of Trust as the "Deed of Trust Property"), which consists of three (3) parcels of land and improvements thereon.

Bidders will be allowed to bid on each Lot individually and/ or all Lots jointly. Subject to the Trustee's right to switch the order of bidding, the Mortgaged Premises shall first be offered for bid jointly (i.e. all the Lots together for a single combined bid for all Lots) (the "Joint Bidding"). Promptly following the Joint Bidding, a second round of bidding will occur pursuant to which each Lot that is part of the Mortgaged Premises shall be offered for bid separately (the "Individual Bidding"). Subject to the terms below relating to the subsequent default by a successful bidder, in the event that the highest amount bid jointly for the combined Lots in the Joint Bidding exceeds the aggregate highest amounts bid separately for the Lots in the Individual Bidding, then the Mortgaged Premises shall be sold together to the highest bidder from the Joint Bidding. On the other hand, but subject to the terms below relating to the subsequent default by a successful bidder, in the event the aggregate highest amounts bid separately for the Lots in the Individual Bidding exceeds the highest amount bid for the combined Lots in the Joint Bidding, then the Mortgaged Premises shall be sold as separate Lots to the separate highest individual bidders from the Individual Bidding. in any foreclosure sale conducted as set forth above it shall be possible, depending upon whether the successful bidder(s)/bid(s) is/are successful on the basis of joint or separate bids, for there to be as few as one successful bidder and/ or as many as three successful bidders and, accordingly, for there to be multiple and different scenarios under which one or more of such otherwise successful bidder(s) could default on their bid(s). Accordingly, and to eliminate the inefficiency and potential economic risk to Borrower and Lender from successive failed foreclosure sales. Lender shall have the right to declare "back-up" winners (the "Back-up Winners") In the event that the Lender shall determine to select Back-up Winners, then the Lender shall announce their identity prior to the conclusion of the above-described bid and foreclosure process, it being the intent of the Lender to select as Back-up Winners that person, or those persons, whose bid(s) will yield the greatest proceeds without, however, exposing Lender to a potential second default by the same bidder. Only qualified bidders will be allowed to bid -- prior to bidding, bidders must deposit cashier's or certified check in the amount of $50,000 for each Lot the bidder will bid upon.

TERMS OF SALE: Cash deposit of $50,000 per Lot to be paid at the time and place of sale, except no deposit shall be required by note holder, its successors or assigns, and the same cash deposit may be used for both the Joint Bidding and the Individual Bidding. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash at settlement, which shall be within thirty (30) days following the auction unless such period is extended by the Trustee, his successors or assigns, for good cause shown; time is of the essence; interest at the rate of 9'l 1% per annum to be paid on unpaid purchase money from date of sale to settlement. Property to be sold subject to all conditions, liens, restrictions and agreements of record affecting same, if any, and to existing leases, if any, except that it is the intent of the Trustee that any such items as may be extinguished by virtue of the foreclosure sale be extinguished. In the event purchaser fails to settle when required, property will be re-sold at purchaser's risk and expense (with defaulting purchaser flable for any readvertising and trustee's and attornever fees and costs arising in connection with failure) faithough Trustee shall also have the right to convey to appropriate Back-Up Winner(s), if any). Taxes, water and all other municipal liens are to be adjusted to the date of sale. All other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis to be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes, document preparation and title insurance to be borne by purchaser. Purchaser (as well as Back-up Winners, if any) may be required to execute a memorandum of sale at the time of sale. Back-up Winners' (if any) bids will be required to remain open for 40 days and deposits from Back-up Winners will be deposited and held by Trustee as security for their bids (and, if not used, will promptly be refunded).

Improvements being sold, "as-is", whereas and without warranty, implied or express, of any kind, including without warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose and with purchaser responsible for all building and other code violations and all defaults (if any) by the landlord to existing tenants.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING GARRETT COUNTY Amendments to the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan

Notice is hereby given that public hearing of the Board County Commissioners of Garrett County is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 21, 2004, at 11:00 a.m. in the Garrett County Commissioners' Public Matter Programmes Published Programmes Public Matter Prog Meeting Room, located at the Courthouse, Oakland, Maryland, to consider two Amendments to the Water and Sewer Master Plan.

Amendments to conside are as follows: 1. Garrett County Wate and Sewer Financial Policy Change [Chapter 4 Page 19] Adoption of this policy change will provide the financing mechanism necessary to complete the capital sewer and water projects necessary for all Garrett County public water and sewer systems.

2. Sweet Rewards Development Inclusion in the Water and Sewer Sanitary District Map 42, Parcel 65 [Chapter 4 pages 23 and 24], Adoption of this service area will provide public water and sewer service to a new residential de velopment consisting of 50-52 new home construction proects 3. Garrett County Airport Expansion, Map 42, Parcel 7 [Chapter 3 Page 25, Chapter 4 Page 15], Adoption of this amendment will allow for the expansion area to be served by public sewer and public water for fire protection and potable use and to obtain a right-of-way for a possible storage tank site. Interested persons will be heard at the public hearing on December 21, 2004, to determine if the amendments to the Water and Sewer Master Plan are necessary for the public health, safety, and welfare of the residents of the current or proposed service areas and if the projects are feasible financially from an engineering standpoint.

To the Editor:

If you listen very closely you should be able to hear volcano eruption....if you look at the top of the mountain above Deep Creek Lake you will see the cause of the volcano and it should stir fear in the hearts of every citizen of the county.

There is a 2500-unit development springing up with a complete lack of planning or foresight as to how this development will impact the roads, schools, water quality, etc. of Garrett County. While there has been a lengthy planning analysis completed for the Deep Creek Watershed, no such ordinances exist for developers and the Mountain Top development is not considered part of the DCW!!!

In other words, it is up to our county commissioners to protect the very reason that Deep Creek Lake has become so popular - the lake, the mountains, and the natural beauty of the area. To the Editor: That natural beauty is being has improved the quality of life here is ruined forever.

part of a "much needed" sewer boundary expansion and that we would have the opportunity to pay for it! Many of us were outraged because our wells were water quality was just fine, and suddenly we were told

Top development.

County will be affected if this type of development continues with no eye to the future. The water quality of the rumble of an impending the lake will be affected by a 15% increase in the population which will come with 2,500 new homes. The golden goose will be cooked if we lose the beauty of the lake and surrounding mountains - the very reason vacationers and homeowners have been coming to Deep Creek Lake for years.

Please ask your commissioners to take the entire county into account as they plan for the future and just pray that they are not too late. The lake is not a gift horse to be taken lightly. The failure of the commissioners to act can only be viewed as a complete abdication of their responsibilities to the citizens of Garrett County. Once the volcano explodes it will simply be too late.

> Sincerely, Susan and Robert Gregg

Perhaps the U.S. judicial irrevocably disturbed by this system is much too lenient rampant development, and in its dealings with drunk it is time to pay attention drivers and it is time to before the very asset that learn a lesson from another country. for her license. A 54-year-old male sideswiped a parked car. (On this is pretty easy to do.) On testing, his blood alcohol level was also slightly above the legal limit. He had no prior offenses. Sentence - a fine of 700 pounds ($1,400 U.S.) for DWI, driver's license suspended for 36 months, and immediate incarceration for 28 days.

Their zero-tolerance policy for DWI may seem severe to us, but we did notice that there is tremendous respect for the laws on the Island. In the pubs in the evenings, we observed that almost every group of people had a designated driver who drank only soda or water. It would be refreshing to see a similar level of respect for the driving laws on this side of the Atlantic.

Sincerely, Bud Peed McHenry

To the Editor:

A few years ago I responded to a disgruntled person who used a public forum (not The Republican) to state an opinion, used the phrase "Go to Garrett County on vacation, come back on probation." I felt I needed to respond because this bad publicity wasn't fair or accurate, and it had the potential to hurt people who depend on visitors to the county for their livelihoods. Just as I have convinced many people to visit the area by saying a few positive words, a few negative

A few weeks ago I responded to a letter in which its writer inadvertently gave the 1-95 area of Virginia a bit of, let's just say, "negative publicity" by describing an unfortunate event that happened there. As I say, I don't believe the writer had any ill will or intent. Nevertheless, this area, like Garrett County, depends on visitors to its historical sites, and any negative press has the potential to do harm.

My response was not intended to be a personal chastisement of its writer. It was an obligation on my part (for the public's benefit) to do the right thing.

Thank you, Rebecca Parks, R.N., Garrett County Health Department Garrett County Inter-Agency Cancer Committee Chairman

To the Editor: On behalf of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, we would like to thank the many companies that participated in "opting out" of their usual flu shot clinics. Because of the shortage of flu vaccine this year, companies and agencies like Mettiki Coal Company, the Board of Education, Allegheny Power, Garrett College, Wisp Mountain Resort, Railey Realty, Black Bear Restaurant, and other local businesses did not receive their usual dosage of vaccine. A health-risk assessment form was sent to these companies in order to determine their high-risk population. Those employees who were in the high-risk category did receive the flu vaccine, but the others voluntarily declined the vaccine. This allowed us to give our excess vaccine to the Garrett County Health Department, allowing them to use the vaccine for the high-risk population of Garrett

County During this time of need we are so pleased and appreciative of the selflessness of our community members. The Garrett community has the feel of a close, small-town family, and the folks who so readily volunteered to give up their flu shots illustrated the true meaning of caring for "our families." Thank you to all who did so.

Judy Simson, RN, BSN Wellness Coordinator,

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to O. Ray Bourland, executive secretary of the Maryland Public Service Commission of the requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Mr. Bourland: Please advise how we may obtain the specific case study and process details that led to the approval of the wind turbine application submitted by Clipper Wind-power (case #8938). We were greatly distressed to learn that our county commissioners requested an expedited review of this application without informing the residents of Garrett County, particularly those in the proposed view shed of the intended site. It is our understanding that this application has been approved without consideration to the environmental impacts, the mutilation of Maryland's highest historic mountain ridge, Backbone Mountain, the residential nuisances, and the diminished property values, all of which are normally associated with wind plants. The Maryland Public Service Commission holds the key to preserving that which keeps Maryland beautiful, and we trust the PSC prides itself on its ability to make decisions that contribute to the quality of life in Maryland; therefore, we are requesting a full indepth review be completed on case #8938 Clipper Windpower before any construction begins, on case #9008 Synergics LLC before any approval is was founded on the principle of religious freedom. Our government is separating itself from religion, and this is very wrong. I guarantee you every person working in a government job will be off for Christmas, though. Why do we celebrate Christmas if not for the birth of Jesus? So, does it make sense they get time off to celebrate something they are pulling away from?

I think not! When I was in school there were prayer meetings that you could attend if you wished. I am sure that is outlawed today. There was discipline when needed. I know that is outlawed today. I grew up with respect for my teachers, parents, and elders. There were no Charles and Heidi Kern such things as bomb threats Oakland or school shootings. Today, a parent is in fear of arrest if he or she disciplines a child in public. What is going to be next!? Can't we see we are going in the wrong direction? We need to go back to the old ways-they worked

> Thank you, Karen Paugh Wheatland, Pa.

Dear Mr. Paugh,

The cartoon was in our paper certainly not as an endorsement of a "Jesus-free" Christmas, but as an expression of the sad fact that the holiday has become so secular and virtually devoid of its religious significance.

To the Editor:

Ever thought that the persistent attacks against the Boy Scouts, Nativity scenes, and crosses in public places seem excessive? Then request that our Congressional leaders change a specific statute in order to prevent the ACLU from collecting attorney fees from taxpayers of local governments the organization takes to court. As an example of the lucrative value of these cases: The ACLU received close to half a million taxpayer dollars after successfully suing to have the 10 Commandments removed from the Alabama courthouse. Ending the financial incentive would hopefully cause the ACLU to decrease its anti-religionanti-Christian-litigation.

Commissioners Raise Wind Power Issue With PSC

A letter has been sent by the Garrett County Board of Commissioners to the Maryland Public Service Commission (PSC) that reiterates its support for the proposed 24-wind-turbine Synergics Energy project, while at the same time asks the PSC to conduct its review process in a manner which would "allow sufficient opportunity for public

The PSC, which has slated three public evidentiary hearings on the Synergics project for late March in Baltimore, will also schedule a hearing in Garrett County for a future date before giving its ruling on the proposal. Amendments To GC Master Plan

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners approved three amendments to the county's water and sewer master plan pertaining to a financial policy change, Sweet Rewards Development, and the airport expansion project.

Only 10 residents attended the hearing, which was held in the commissioners' public meeting room at the courthouse.

The first amendment pertains to the "Garrett County Water and Sewer Financial Policy Change." A new policy was adopted by the commissioners last month, but needed to be incorporated into the master plan.

"Adoption of this policy change will provide the financing mechanism necessary to complete the capital sewer and water projects for all Garrett County public water and sewer systems," said Mark Tonkovich, director of the Garrett County Department of Public Utili-

The policy sets impact fees and connection charges for customers on the Deep Creek Lake and other Garrett County sewer systems. To help cover the cost of upgrading and expanding the Deep Creek wastewater treatment facility, the minimum capacity charge for Deep Creek Lake sewer system customers is $6,500 for one residential dwelling.

The minimum capacity charge for other countyowned systems is $2,000 for one residential dwelling.

The policy also states that "the Garrett County Department of Public Utilities will be provided with an Continued on Page A-10

Officials Approve DC Sanitary District Annexation Proposal Postponed By Officials

The proposed annexation of two areas into the Deep Creek Sanitary District to provide public sewer service has been put on hold, the Board of Garrett County commissioners announced last Friday.

"Executive approval by the board will now postpone annexation of Area 1 and Area 2 until definite evidence can be compiled that supports the fact that the annexation of these areas is essential for public health reasons and is economically practical to users within the Deep Creek Sanitary District," the commissioners said in a press re-

Nearly 50 residents attended a public hearing in October, with many voicing their opposition to the Garrett County Department of Public Utilities' proposal to annex their properties into the district. Those residents noted at the hearing that they already had working sewer systems and could not afford to pay thousands of dollars for hook-up fees, lines, user rates, and possible ad valorem taxes if they were required to connect to the public system.

Seasons of Hope...

Food, water, and air are the first elements that come to mind when considering what human beings need to survive. These are the basic essentials. A secondary list might include warmth, medical care, and perhaps companionship. But another element that is desperately needed, if not to survive, at least to thrive in this life, is hope.

When life's journey takes us into the darkest, most painful, most difficult valleys, sometimes hope is the only thing that can rescue us. Without that anticipation — that sense that when one is as low as he or she can get, better times lie ahead - one would surely perish.

Light is another element that is crucial for humans to thrive. Depression rates are always much higher during the winter months when the daylight is the shortest. In fact, in the northernmost regions, where daylight is either non-existent for months or lasts for only a few hours a day, suicide rates are among the highest in the world.

The seasons of Christmas, Hanukkah, and, to an extent, Kwanzaa are seasons of hope and, at least in a figurative sense, seasons of light. Perhaps enlightenment would be a more apt term. Certainly for Christians and Jews, the belief in the existence of a loving God is, or should be, profound at this time of the year. We are reminded that, no matter how tough things get in this life, all is never lost; that better — much better — times lie ahead; that there will truly come a time for each of us when everything

Life over the past few weeks has taken many people in Garrett County deep into the aforementioned valleys, as incidents of suffering and loss have been unusually rampant. That sense of hope for many is buried beneath thick layers of pain and despair. The light is completely obscured. But the hope and the light are, nonetheless, still there, and it is our fervent wish that all people, especially those friends who are suffering so right now, will remember during this

Please support the effort to preserve as much of Garrett County's natural charms as possible. It is, after all, the reason for the county's prosperity and future prospects. It is people, homeowners, visitors, tourists, lake-lovers, skiers, boaters, campers, and hunters who will keep Garrett a livable and lovable place. Let's not destroy this place "save" in order to itparticularly since we seem to be doing rather well without the unnecessary and marginal windmill project. To the Editor:

The Republican got it right last week regarding what our county commissioners should do regarding all industrial wind powered electrical facilities in Garrett County. Machines that are illuminated day and night standing taller than the Statue of Liberty along miles of the highest ridgeline in Maryland will be "the biggest possible mistake we could make," as the editor states. The only questionable information in the editorial is the $1.287 million the commissioners "claim" they will receive. When asked for proof, documentation, or guarantees of this money, none of our commissioners can produce it. The promised revenues for Meyersdale and Thomas failed to materialize after the machines went up, and once they are up, it's too late Statements made by our county commissioners that there is nothing they can do are simply false. "And Jesse begat David the king; and David the king begat Solomon. . . " (St. Matthew 1:6).

I love children's books. One of my favorite kinds is the pop-up book. The page is turned and some new scene pops up into three-dimensional reality. I have an Advent calendar like that. Closed, it is a book. When opened it becomes a Victorian English village preparing for Christ-

Once upon a time there was a man named Suger who opened a book. From the pages there popped up a Gothic church with majestic walls of stone and glorious stained glass windows. In one of those "poor boy makes good" stories this St. Denis, north of Paris, in A.D. 1122. During his 29 year tenure as abbot he effected one of the most remarkable transformations in the history of the world: He invented Gothic architecture. Suger read a book which he believed to have been written by the patron saint of his abbey, Denis. What he discovered there was a theology of light which illuminated all of Christian doctrine. One verse in particular, Romans 1:20, stood out: "For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse. That verse became, to use a modern American reference, the John 3:16 of the high Middle Ages. The architectural revolution of Gothic sought to create a church constructed from "the creation of the world" through which one could and would see "the invisible things of God." "His eternal power and Godhead" would be so radiantly and beautifully clear that no one would be left with an excuse for not believing in God.

Suger, a monk, was elected abbot of the Royal Abbey of

Thus the round Romanesque arches became arrows pointing heavenward. This was a theology which literally raised the roof. The old wooden roof was replaced with higher, vaulted stone arches. So much stone was taken out of the walls to make room for vast, magnificent stained glass windows that perpendicular stone supports, called "flying buttresses," had to be built against the exterior walls to hold up the fabric of the building.

The Abbey Church of St. Denis was the paradigm of all Gothic architecture thereafter

One glorious detail of that invention is a theme in stained glass, repeated often, that of the Jesse tree.

The "begats" of Jesse and David are but two of 42 in the lineage of Jesus Christ. Jesse was the first in the genealogy to beget a king. In twelfth century France this fact was important for the monastery of St. Denis, where the mortal remains of French kings had already been laid to rest for centuries.

Jesse begat a king in the line of kings culminating in

The window shows Jesse asleep. From his loins grows a tree. This image in stained glass also emerges from an opened book: "And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots" (Isaiah 11:1). David is the first fruit of the tree, and then Solomon and ultimately Jesus. The image divorced from all religious significance is a lovely symbiosis of the and human nature. In Christian terms, the Jesse tree represents vividly the organic union of persons listed in a genealogy. which, even in the twelfth century, must have seemed just a little dry.

The depiction of a tree growing from human seed and the Gothic church growing from a book are examples of one kind of thing sprung from another kind of thing.

As I sat in the Church of St. Denis, now a cathedral, on the Fourth Lord's Day of Advent, on a chilly but not really cold day, I could see my breath. As a friend once said to me, during winter the people in the Middle Ages must have always been cold.

The Gothic church evidences a faith which shone so brilliantly in the hearts of men and women that they spent the wealth of their nations to build the great stone and glass proclamations of Christ's gospel - and here's the clincher - without any evident concern for their physical comfort. They had discovered the physicality of spirit, which took precedence over the physicality of flesh.

The Book of Books is open in the Cathedral of St. Denis. There is room enough for a three-dimensional reality to spring into existence and light enough for all to see it. That is the three-dimensional reality of embodied faith breathing a spirit that can nearly be seen in the spectrum of streaming light. It is the reality of the Word-Made-Flesh, incarnated once for all and forever repeated in every new "I believe."

"And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ" (St. Matthew

To the Editor:

In response to your comments on my previous letter regarding wind power (Dec. 9), I have tried to provide some statistics. It is true that wind power provides only a small amount of power in the U.S. Renewable energy (wind, solar, hydro, etc.) provides about 20% of the nation's electric power, Most of this is from hydroelectric dams, but wind power is one of the fastest growing sources of clean energy worldwide. Why? Because today the cost of wind power is competitive with fossil fuel generated

Wind power is a viable option in only certain re-gions of the country, Sustained (average) wind speed and terrain are major factors. Much of the west is too rugged to cost-effectively wind turbines. In some areas where wind power is a viable option, such as eastern Washingthe land has much higher value for agriculture. Garrett County is a good spot for wind power be-cause of the sustained wind speeds in this area and terrain that is not too rugged (compared to the Rockies). This area also does not produce a large percentage of the nation's grain, cattle, or dairy. The value of the land in this county is viewed by many to be its recreational value. That's why so many come here to enjoy their high-decibel snowmobiles, jet-skis, jet boats, and ATVs. Curiously, we hear no complaints about noise from these machines.

Some folks seem worried about property values drop-ping because of the wind turbines. Clear cutting mountaintops to build condominiums is just as detrimental, if not more, to property values. Moreover, what will happen to the value of the land when the air becomes too polluted from coal-fired power plants? Nationwide, coal-fired power plants spew 2 billion metric tons of CO2, 10 million tons of sulfur dioxide, 4 million tons of nitrogen oxide, and 50 tons of mercury into the atmosphere each

Wind turbines and innot be diametrically poptake many wind turbines (as many as 250) to replace a single 250 megawatt coalfired plant. My point was and is, that Americans need to be open to clean alternative energy sources. I believe Garrett County should embrace wind power and send a message to the rest of the nation that we are concerned about the environment and reducing our dependence on foreign energy. If we looked at wind power differently and used effec-tive PR, this county could attract far more new residents than what might potentially leave due to new wind turbines.

We see the countless Christmas trees around the World below, with tiny lights Like heavens, reflecting on the snow. The sight is so spectacular, please wipe away the tear. For we are spending Christmas with Jesus another year. We hear the many songs that people hold so dear. But the sounds of music can't compare with the Christmas Choir up here. For it is beyond description, to hear the angels sing.

> We know how much you miss us, We see the pain inside your heart. But we are not so far away. We really aren't apart, So be happy for us dear ones, You know we hold you dear.

We sent you each a special gift, from our heavenly home above. We sent you a special memory of our undying love. After all, love is a gift more precious than pure gold. Please love and keep each other, as our Father said to do. For we can't count the blessing or love he has for each of you. So have a Merry Christmas and wipe away that tear. Remember we are spending Christmas with Jesus another yea

"VERY LOVING" is how this gray cat is described by her former owner. The feline had to be given up because the owner has allergies. Also available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter is a brown and white collie mix, who is said to be nice and obedient. He was dropped off in front of the shelter. The collieshepherd mix from last week's adoptables is also patiently waiting for a good home. "Please come in and meet all the nice adoptables at the shelter, and make it a Merry Christmas for everyone!" said a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. "Please do not adopt a pet if you are going to tie it outside 24 hours a day in this cold weather. Straw is now available at the shelter for your pets' outside houses, but please take only what you need. This Christmas why not get your pet an ID tag and some treats?" Dad:

Why did he have to leave us?

It wasn't time for him to go.

Why did he have to leave us?

There's so much we need to know.

We need to tell him one more time

How much we loved him so.

Why did he have to leave us?

We weren't ready to let him go.

But the Angels came from heaven;

They said it was time to say goodbye.

We asked how they could take from us Such a truly wonderful guy.

They said they had a place for him

A place that's way up high.

And he'll be watching over you,

by Elaine Kackley Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center

If you want to give a gift that says you really care, why not consider a gift certificate to use the Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center for the Mature Adult? The center, which is open to county residents age 55 and over, offers a full range of exercise opportunities. Certificates may be purchased for single visits at $3 each, for monthly memberships of $15, or annual fees of $150. Give a gift that makes a difference.

Ball and mat yoga classes will be held at the center each Tuesday and Thursday at 9 a.m. beginning in January. These classes will be open to the community and offered to members at no cost. For more information, you may call the office Monday through Friday 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. at 301-746-8050. January will bring new faces to the center when three Frostburg State University students join us for their internships. They will be developing some new classes for us and working with all our members. We look forward to sharing our health and fitness center experience with these

Just another reminder: The center will be closed from Dec. 23 until Jan. 3. We will all come back together to kick off 2005 with renewed determination.

The most common New Year's resolution is "to get fit." Many people have started and stopped fitness programs over and over. They are tired of losing the same 10 pounds; of huffing and puffing up the stairs; of needing to hold on to something to get up from a seated position; and of wondering who that is in the mirror. It's time to for

First, figure out why you really want to be more fit. We generally do not make real, lasting changes for others; we must make them for ourselves. Genuine goals for improved health and fitness are infinitely more productive in the long run than squeezing into those old pants that are still hanging in your closet. Be realistic when setting goals. Set some short-term goals to begin, and when you achieve those, set more and add a challenge each time you establish new goals. Sometimes goals that involve numbers like pounds, ounces, calories, fat grams, sets, and reps are unrealistic. Make your primary goal one to feel and look better. Commit to doing something for your physical and emotional well being every day, and soon you will be well on the way to achieving your initial goals. Don't dwell on your past failures when it comes to fitness and diet. Most of us at some time in our lives have failed with a new diet or exercise program. Remember Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center for Mature Adults has a program waiting for you. We are here to help.

Merry Christmas to all and have a safe holiday season. We will see you in the New Year.

A GIVING ACTIVITY — The children of St. Mark's Lutheran Church Early Learning Center worked hard last week to make gift baskets for the homebound persons of St. Mark's congregation. The tots, ages 3 to 5, joined up with the church's Ladies Guild and other volunteers to make a variety of cookies and candy, and then they packed nine baskets with the goodles, as well as several other smaller packages for members of the congregation and the community who have helped the center in some way this past year. Pictured above during the goody-making process are, seated, left to right, Briana Getz, Ian Friend, Lynsey King, and Troy Cumerlato. Standing in the same order are adults Rose Elsey, Susie Butt, and Delores Moyer. I know that there are a significant number of Garrett County property owners who, like me, reside outside the county. How many of these property owners know nothing about what is going on with the windmill project? Even more important, how many of the residents of Garrett County do not fully understand the nature and extent of this project? Wouldn't it be prudent, before it is too late, to take time to promote public awareness of this project and address the concerns of both resident and non-resident property own-

Have the county commissioners thoroughly investigated these and other concerns associated with the cerns associated with the installation of windmills? If not, why not, and if so, why hasn't this information been communicated to the residents and property owners of Garrett County?

For the record, on February 25, 2003, I sent a letter, very similar to this one, to the Garrett County Board of Commissioners, Delegate George Edwards, and the Public Service Commission to express my questions and concerns regarding the proposed windmill develop-

GARRETT COUNTY STUDENTS ATTEND THE NUTCRACKER - Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) provided an opportunity for 100 Garrett County students to attend the The Nutcracker ballet at the Benedum Center in Pittsburgh recently. Attendance at the ballet performance by the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre was made possible by a donation by David and Irene Eyer, residents of Oakland and Key West, Fla. Fifty-seven students and chaperones from Southern Garrett High School (pictured) and 43 from Northern Garrett High School took part in this trip. "A major goal of Garrett Lakes Arts Festival is to support the educational enrichment of youth through exposure to the arts and to expand their appreciation and understanding of the arts. Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events

Rated PG - Running time: 1:41 - Released 12/17/04 Review by Adam Sincell

Let me begin by saying that I truly enjoyed Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events. Though lacking a sufficient dose of Christmas cheer, the movie offers something very original and intriguing, whether it be a diverse cast of bizarre characters, a spectacular rollercoaster ride through magical worlds, or a series of, well, rather unfortunate events. Based on the first three Lemony Snicket books by Daniel Handler, adapted for the screen by Robert Gordon, and directed by Brad Silberling (director of 1998's City of Angels), Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events is certainly a vacation from anything you've ever seen before.

This movie, in the words of Lemony Snicket himself (played by Jude Law), will seem extremely unpleasant to many. At the center of this "most depressing" tale are the three Baudelaire children: Violet (Emily Browning), Klaus (Liam Aiken), and baby Sunny (Kara and Shelby Hoffman), each of whom has his or her own unique aspirations and talents. Their story begins on an unhappy note indeed, as their parents mysteriously perish in a fire at their home. The Baudelaire children, now orphans, are forced to live with Count Olaf, a greedy and eccentric lunatic played by Jim Carrey, who, we soon discover, is plotting to kill the children as a means to inherit the enormous Baudelaire fortune. Becoming aware of Count Olafs dastardly plan, the children are gradually passed down the line of other distant relatives, including their compassionate, animal-loving Uncle Monty (Billy Connolly), as well as their neurotic, obsessive-compulsive Aunt Josephine (Meryl Streep). Throughout their journey, the children are pursued by the evil Count Olaf in a vast array of clever disguises. Determined to stop the Count in any way possible, the three Baudelaire children face treacherous odds and countless disasters in hopes of finding a new home.

Jim Carrey returns here with the same over-the-top trademark that makes his name famous. Though he is one of few who could have pulled off the wild Count Olaf so effectively, his energy is at times rather overbearing to the fund to cover capital procharacter and, ultimately, the overall plot. Meryl Streep, on the other hand, brings the perfect amount of quirkiness and lovable paranoia to the role of Aunt Josephine. This is yet another movie to add to her versatile reputation. Billy Connolly also shines as the wide-eyed snake-taming Uncle Monty. Nevertheless, the movie belongs to the three leading children. Browning and Aiken are both very talented actors of whom I hope to see a great deal more in the future. They both capture the innocence and despair of the Baudelaire children, causing their audience to truly feel for them. I also immensely enjoyed the character Sunny, the youngest of the three. Though speaking in baby-language throughout the entire movie, her lines are conveyed by the ingenious use of witty subtitles, giving Sunny an attitude all her own. The ensemble cast also includes appearances by Timothy Spall, Catherine O'Hara, Jennifer Coolidge, Cedric the Entertainer, and Dustin Hoffman. The ever-poignant presence of this remarkable cast works well for this kind of movie, which is anything but ordinary in scope.

Through the use of amazing special effects and wacky performances, the Baudelaire children's exposure to such unfortunate events becomes increasingly fascinating, as well as frequently depressing. For those of you who have never read the Lemony Snicket books (myself included), this movie can be a downer at times. Though advertised as a children's movie, it has its fair share of dark

THE PREMIERE ISSUE OF MARYLAND LIFE: America in Miniature is now available. The January/ February 2005 issue of this much anticipated magazine includes articles on glass artist Julie Turrentine of Swanton, snowshoeing in Garrett County, and the Deep Creek Dunk, as well as wintertime photos taken at Savage River Lodge and Deep Creek Lake. Maryland Life will be published six times a year by Great State Publishing LLC of Frederick and will feature profiles of "outstanding" Marylanders, some of the state's most beautiful homes and gardens, history, full-color photo essays, artists and craftspeople, destination and activity ideas for couples and families, and dining ideas and recipes from throughout the state. moments. For those of you who have read the books, this will most likely serve as the perfect complement to the magical worlds created by Daniel Handler. However, regardless of your previous experience with the material, one cannot deny that you will take something genuine away from this film as I most certainly did. Above all else, this movie serves as a reminder that good wins against bad, even when we experience inexplicable pain. In the words of Lemony Snicket, "What may seem like a series of unfortunate events might, in fact, be the first steps of a

Northern Boys Lose To Rams, Crush Calvary; Tourney Ahead

The Northern High School boys basketball squad split for the week, dropping a 44-35 battle with Southern Friday in Accident (see SHS coverage), before bounding back to take a 77-37 win over Calvary Christian Academy luesday. That victory gave NHS (2-3) a much-needed boost after three straight losses, and the Huskies are looking forward to hosting

School/McDonald's Christmas Tournament this week. With five players hitting for double figures, the Huskies used good teamwork to down Calvary by 40 points Tuesday. The win was paced by junior forward Brent Beachy's 13 points, while classmate Blake Walker netted 12 points from the other forward slot. Senior guard Matt Bass and senior center Eric Johnson tossed in 11 points, and freshman forward Kory

Gibson contributed 10. Ryan Chaney scored a game-high 23 points for Calvary, while his teammates divided the measly 14-point remainder. The losers fell to 2-4. In contrast to the varsity romp, the junior varsity contest was a hard-fought affair that ended with the young Huskies taking a 22-20 win. Tyler Southerly led all scorers with 16 points for Northern, while Calvary's Jordan Peters and Jordan Conners scored eight points apiece.

"Calvary played tough, they are a better team than their 37 points would indicate," NHS coach Paul Edwards said after Tuesday's meeting. "We played consistent throughout the game, which was good to see.

We at Manor Home Center would like to thank all of the faculty, parents, and especially the students who participated in our John Deere Coloring Contest. Each student did a wonderful job with his or her picture. Each grade level had a different picture of a John Deere tractor to color. It was very hard to pick seven winners (one for each grade level) out of over 400 students who participated. We believe the students showed great enthusiasm and imagination. We hope the students enjoyed themselves while participating, and hopefully we will have another contest next year. The student's pictures will be on display throughout the new year at Manor Home Center. You are welcome to come in and take your picture home. The winning students are receiving a gift certificate from Manor Home Center so they may choose from a variety of John Deere merchandise. The winners for the John Deere Coloring Contest are:

Capital News Service

native oysters, gasoline ad-

preservation are just some of the environmental topics ANNAPOLIS - Non- lawmakers say will likely emerge during the General ditives, black bears and land Assembly session that begins in January. A proposed bill and constitutional amendment to subject environmentally sensitive land sales to a legislative vote could dominate the environmental discussion. The proposals come in response to recent controversy over the state's role in a failed preservation land esses they're talking about transaction with developer Willard Hackerman.

"It's a reaction to the Hackerman deal," said Delegate Peter Franchot, D-Montgomery, who will sponsor legislation in the House, "because the Hackerman deal was going on. . while all these other proc-were supposedly in place to land held its first black bear protect us."

Sen. Brian Frosh, D-Montgomery, will sponsor the amendment in the Senate. Sen. Roy Dyson, D-St. Mary's, will sponsor the related bill, intended to be more specific than the amendment.

The state drew criticism two months ago when news reports detailed a plan to sell 836 acres of St. Mary's County forest to Hackerman at cost. Hackerman has since claimed the deal was not secret, and that he would have kept the land mostly preserved, contrary Under the amendment, which is still being drafted, Franchot said public land sales could be consolidated into one vote before the Legislature.

"Not a big burden, very straightforward, and that's the process we envision," said Franchot.

"If we're going to dispose of land acquired for preservation," said Frosh, "it's going to be done with the approval of the General Assembly.... I don't think it'll require much extra effort, and it'll provide sunshine that's badly needed."

But Delegate Richard Sossi, R-Queen Anne's, who serves on the House Environmental Matters Committee, said there's no need for such legislation.

"This is not a haphazard method," he said of the process in place for selling public land. "It may have gotten reported haphazardly, which is unfortu-

Currently, land sales must pass through the Department of Planning before being voted on by the Board of Public Works.

"This is hardly what you'd call holding an auction out the back door," said

While the land deal has dominated the recent environmental debate, lawmakers expect other issues to take the stage in the spring.

Sossi said he pre-filed a bill intended to phase out the gasoline additive MTBE. The toxic chemical, methyl tertiary butyl ether, has emerged in hundreds of drinking wells in Maryland, despite efforts to curb gas station leaks.

And Sossi said he's anxious to see approval for the introduction of non-native oysters to the Chesapeake Bay, and hopes lawmakers don't dawdle.

"The oyster population is dwindling and dwindling," said Sossi, supporting Gov. Robert Ehrlich's push for the expeditious introduction of large, disease-resistant Asian oysters into the bay.

Frosh, though, is drafting a bill calling for thorough scientific research before introducing alien species. The National Academy of Sciences has said five more vears of research would be required to ensure the Asian oysters don't disrupt bay ecology.

"The history of ecosystems is rife with examples of disastrous experiments of non-native species," said Frosh, citing nutria, snakeheads, and mute swans as just a few Maryland exam-

"We introduce dinnerplate-sized oysters, and they have dinner-plate-sized viruses," said Franchot. "It's typical, seat-of-the-pants, don't-bother-me-with-thefacts, this-is-what-I-want-todo Ehrlich administration process.'

Finally, black bear hunting will re-emerge as an issue, with a bill already drafted by Delegate Barbara Frush, D-Prince George's, to outlaw it. Frush said her measure would give the power to declare a bear hunt to the General Assembly, and not the Department of Natural Resources.

My heart still aches with sadness, And secret tears still flow. What it meant to lose you, No one will ever know.

I would love to see your smiling face, That's what stood out the most, Love to hear your tender voice, That's what brought us so close.

Unseen, unheard, you are always near, Still loved, still missed, still very dear. I'll never be afraid to die, Because you are waiting beyond God's blue sky.

Q. Daddy, why do angels have wings? Well, dear, it's - er - because - that is - so they can fly to Earth from heaven, sort of, ... I guess...

But daddy, why don't they just take an airplane like everybody else?

From here, this conversation goes off in the "not exactly" direction, and the best exit strategy is often to say "Hey, how would you like a nice cup of hot chocolate with marshmallows?"

Adults chuckle among themselves, "Kids sure ask some strange questions," but sometimes such questions mask a far deeper issue. This question goes to the core of the way we understand God, our images of God, and the way our entire system of thought changes over time

It's not hard for an adult (or even older children) to understand that it is our images of the angels that have wings. It is a big mistake to confuse images with reality. Indeed, the Eastern Orthodox faiths dislike images specifically because of this risk. We know so little of supernatural reality that the temptation to devise images is irresistible. There are very few ways to communicate other than by

But why do angels have wings? Why not astronaut rocket back-packs? Why not nuclear-powered roller blades? Where did the wings come from?

Art historians can trace the origins of wings on angels back several millennia, well before the time of Christ. The ancient Greek legend of Icarus and Daedalus features humans with artificial wings attached so as to fly toward the sun. Throughout the great majority of recorded history, mankind was constrained to live on the surface of the planet, with no chance to rise above it. It was impossible for a human to travel in the air, and hence (by weak but typical reasoning), only supernatural beings could do so. The image of angels having wings follows from assigning a natural mechanism (wings, as found on birds) to explain this supernatural capability. This is a common, but

Along with this came several other notions, plausible enough to be taken for granted: For example, heaven was "up there" in the sky. This notion persisted for centuries. There were many other example where images evolved into "facts." What began as an image, pointing to a higher reality, was slowly transformed into an explanation of that reality. In this way, the reality was cheapened, by being squeezed into terms of mere human existence.

Humans still want some kind of images, and we are left unsettled when images are inadequate. That's where we stand today, and there are some very adverse conse-

A substantial fraction of the scientific community has abandoned religion altogether, via a four-step process:

- first, realize that the description of an image (of something spiritual) is inadequate to give a natural explanation of it;

- second, reject the image;

- third, confuse the image with the reality; - fourth, conclude that the underlying reality does not

Many other people, impressed with the learned demeanor and authority of scientists, go along with this line of thinking.

The truly well-educated scientist is less susceptible to the arrogant presumption that knowledge of everything is attainable. A certain humility before the awesome expanse of science is an important step toward developing humility before God. And in turn, that humility appreciates that our human minds can only grasp images of God, which fall far short of the reality.

When we cast aside an obsolete image, where is the replacement - that better, more fitting image that still points to the higher reality? If it's not evident, people who equate images with reality will experience severe challenges to their beliefs. It doesn't have to be that way. The essential point is that images are intended to point to a higher reality that lies beyond human expression. The danger is that by taking an image too seriously, people will forget the enormous distinction between what we can comprehend and the higher reality of God.

If we can accept that every image is ultimately inadequate, then even old images can remain helpful. "Angels we have heard on high, sweetly singing o'er the plain" still points to God's message that the birth of Christ is worthy of celebration. "No room at the inn" still conveys the idea that the natural tendency of humans is to think only of short-term expediencies, rejecting the message of Christ.

(A GARRETT COUNTY COMPANY) Solid waste collection you can depend on.

MOCK ELECTION PARTICIPANTS RECOGNIZED - Gage Welch, the winner, and the participants of the recent Mock Election at Southern High School were recognized at the Garrett County Board of Education monthly meeting. Dave Bender, who was also recognized by the board for being named Garrett County Teacher of the Year, gave a presentation to the board. He shared some voting statistics, showed the Webquest site, and honored Welch as the winner of the school's Electoral Contest. Also recognized for their assistance and sponsorship for the project were the Garrett County Republican Central Committee, the Garrett County Democratic Central Committee, and First United Bank. Pictured above, from left to right, are Brenda Butscher, Bill Grant, Welch, LuAnn Watson (SHS teacher), Bender, Dr. Wendell Teets (superintendent), and Jim Raley (board president).

The three wise men from afar still indicates that Jesus came for everyone on Earth, not just his immediate neighbors. Dwelling on these old images, as we do each Christmas, should serve as a reminder that God's reality goes well beyond our understanding.

The modern child who considers wings irrelevant to angels is actually just like the rest of us. We are all struggling with inadequate images. Fortunately, God's unconditional love doesn't depend on our human limitations.

Bathed in Glory SUNDAY Micah 5:2-9 MONDAY Isaiah

It was clearly a perplexing scene. Who could understand it? There lay an infant on a bed of straw, His newborn cries drowned by the mooing of cows and the bleating of sheep. There were the honorable Wise Men from the East, dressed in rich fabrics, carrying jewels, the finest of their gifts of fragrance mingled with the animals' scent. In contrast, the weatherworn shepherds trembled in awe at the scene before them...still stunned from their encounter with angels. Mary and Joseph could not take their eyes from the true miracle God had entrusted to their care... a babe destined for perfection...born into a scene of confusion and imperfection...yet, bathed in glory.

Though we can never be perfect like Jesus, our Heavenly Father seeks that each of us be destined for glory to live forever with Him.

We are taught in God's Holy Word, "Therefore, since we are justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Through Him, we have obtained access to this grace in which we stand, and we rejoice in our hope of sharing the glory of God." [Romans 5:1-2]

In this holy season, share in the glory of God like the Wise Men did by worshiping Him this week. In this way we can all remember that God wants to share His glory with us. May we all bathe in the glory of God's Son this Christmas and enjoy His blessing.

Birthday . Song" all make for a festive occasion and are an important part of the tradition. Although we may wonder if Jesus ever had a birthday party, it is fairly certain that they didn't have candles on top of a cake, nor that He would have received many gifts. However, perhaps His mother Mary would have prepared a special meal for the family in His honor, and His father Joseph may have presented Him with some sort of a handmade gift. Not much is said in the Bible about birthday parties, except for a few places where a king would have a special birthday banquet in his honor. Perhaps the common people were so involved with just making a living and surviving the hardships of life that a birthday was just another day. This year, during the Christmas season, we should be sure that Jesus is involved with our celebrating; after all, we are celebrating His birthday. When we open our Christmas presents, and when we sit down for our special Christmas dinner, we should be sure to thank our Lord for His many blessings, and invite Jesus to oin us in our festivities. And although we may not see Him, if we are sincere and really want Him to join us, we should be able to feel His presence, and this could be our best Christmas ever.

Happy

Almost everyone enjoys a birthday party; and for some, especially if the occasion is their own birthday. The gathering of family and friends, and of course the presents, the cake, and the singing of the famous "Happy Birthday

Behold, the virgin shall be with child, and bear a Son, and they shall call His name Emmanuel, which is translated, "God with us." New K.J.V. Matthew 1:23

· Everyone has heard of - and is all too familiar with - Murphy's Law. which states that if anything can go wrong, it will. There's a little-known corollary to Murphy's Law, though: "If there is a possibility of several things going wrong, the one that will go wrong is the one that will do the most damage.

· Audrey Hepburn, that classic icon of the silver screen, had a figure that was envied by women around the world. How she kept that figure. though, is not very well known: It's been reported that her diet frequently consisted of little more than ice cubes and lettuce. . It's been observed that when green tree frogs fall asleep, they turn a lighttan color.

. You may be surprised to learn that it was Steve Wozniak, co-founder of Apple Computers, who made this observation: "Never trust a computer you can't throw out a window.'

• From 1920 to 1931, there was actually a ban on casinos in Nevada.

. John Tyler was the first person to become President of the United States being after the death of the chief executive - and thereafter, some people began caffing him "His Accidency." Other less-than-flattering presidential nicknames include "His Rotundity" for John Adams, "Martin Van Ruin" for Martin Van Buren, "Uncle Jumbo" for Grover Cleveland, "Rutherfraud" for Rutherford B. Hayes and, for reasons unclear at this time, "Dude President" for Chester A. Arthur.

• If you're a gardener, perhaps you've heard of these unusual plants: drunkard's dream, cuckoo flower, Mickey Mouse plant, dove's dung. hairy canary and Dracula. Then again, perhaps you haven't.

Cats and Milk

Can cats drink milk? My · friend says it's bad for them. -Andrea T., Houston

. Cats can drink milk, and most A love it — but milk or cream can create digestive problems in some felines. In fact, cats can be lactose intolerant, just as many people are.

Lactose intolerance is an inability to properly digest milk or milk products. Lactose, the enzyme present in cow's milk, is broken down by another enzyme called lactase, which is typically present in your (and your cat's) stomach. However, many people do not have the lactase enzyme, for any of a number of reasons. When these people (or pets) drink milk, they suffer digestive problems.

In cats, this intolerance sometimes manifests itself as diarrhea, which isn't pleasant for anyone. If you notice your cat has problems soon after drinking milk, it may be lactose intolerant. Stop giving milk, cream or cheese to the cat and see if the probanother cause, or take it to the vet to rule out any other issue.)

Limit the amount of milk products you give your cat, even if it seems to have no trouble. Cow's milk provides. fimited benefits to cuts. If you re work and ried about your pet getting the right amount of nutrients, add a vitamin supplement to its diet as well as a fresh-food meal (such as lightly steamed chicken, beef or shrimp) twice a week. Save the milk or cream as a special, and rare, reward.

▲ I have a walking stick with oan elaborate gold head. It was inscribed for a lodge member in 1903. Where can I find out how much it is worth? — Larry, Spicer,

. Two walking stick dealers that A might be helpful are Henry Taron, Tradewinds Antiques and Auctions, 24 Magnolia Ave., P.O. Box 249, Manchester, Mass. 01944; and Leila Nelson, World of the Walking Stick, P.O. Box 1004, Englewood Cliffs, NJ 07632. There is also the Cane Collectors Club of America, 2 Horizon Road, Suite G18, Fort Lee, NJ 07024.

• We have a 1976 automobile license plate issued by Pennsylvania. The plate's numbers and one letter are all inverted, an obvious mistake. Who can we contact to find out if it has any value? -Robert, Sarasota, Fla.

. I suggest you contact the A. Automobile License Plate Collectors Association, 7365 Main St., No. 214, Stratford, CT 06614. For a second opinion, Conrad Hughson is a dealer who specializes in older or unusual license plates. His address is P.O. Box 941, Brattleboro, VT 05302.

I have several dozen records, mostly mint and popular music, issued during the 1960s and '70s. Can you help me find out how much they might be worth? - B.P., Auburn, Calif.

. I recommend you invest in at A least one or two reference books that list values. Two of the more popular ones are the Goldmine Price Guide to 45 RPM Records by Tim Neely (Krause Publications. $24.99), and The Official Price Guide to Records by Jerry Osborne (House of Collectibles, $20). Both are comprehensive, easy to use and written by experts.

Listening to Christmas

by Alan Harris

Have you ever heard snow? Have you ever heard Christmas? Not the howling wind of a blizzard, Not the traffic noises in the city, not the crackling of snow underfoot, not the bells and hymns and carols, but the actual falling of snow? beautiful as they are, not even the laughter of your children We heard it one night in Wisconsin as they open their presents quite unexpectedly while walking up a hill but Christmas itself? toward our cabin in the woods, we heard the gentle fall of snow on snow.

No wind, no sound but the snow.

Have you been by yourself a soft whisper between footsteps. and just sat and listened to the silence within, We stopped, switched off our flashlights, patiently, without letting the mind and just listened. race to the next Christmas chore? All around us in the darkness

> Perhaps if you have, you felt the pulse of all humanity beating in your own heart. Perhaps you noticed an outflowing of love for all your brothers and sisters on the earth, a soft sense of Oneness with all that lives.

In the silence of a snowy night, listen intently, holding your breath, and you may hear snow on snow.

Serene, alone, undisturbed by thought, listen to the silence in your heart, and you may hear Christmas.

St. Mark's Christian Early Learning Center is being aligned with the public pre-K and kindergarten classrooms through the grant. The St. Mark's center is using Work Sampling System child assessments, and provides on-site vision and hearing screenings.

"This has been a rewarding experience for us," commented Becky Moyer, St. Mark's Center director. "I can see that the children are really benefiting from what we are learning through the Judy Center.

All the partners in the Enhancement Grant are benefiting from the funding by receiving stipends, mileage reimbursements, training, tuition, substitutes and classroom supplies. The entire grant is going directly to the partners in one way or another.

"The Judy Center staff may have additional responsibilities now, but we're very excited about our ability to share what we know about quality child care and education with more preschool teachers," stated Hornyak.

NORTHERN HIGH STUDENTS RECYCLE - Northern High School recently recycled the first load of mixed office paper and newspaper for the year. Over 2,600 pounds were taken to the landfill for recycling. This was just the amount collected during the first quarter of the school year. If recycling is continued at this rate, students and teachers will have saved over 5 tons of paper from sitting in the landfill, said a school spokesperson. Northern High is the only school in the county to have a school-wide recycling program called TOTE (Take Our Trash Elsewhere), which was started in 2002 by students in the AP environmental science class. Last year over 10,000 pounds of paper were recycled. Grants were written by AP environmental students and awarded so that bins could be placed in each classroom or office. Students from Barb Law's student service alliance and April Slagle's AP environmental science class collect and sort the paper each week. "Special thanks to Bobby Tabor and Bill Slagle for contributing to the success of the program by hauling the recyclables to the landfill," said the spokesperson. Pictured above are AP environmental science students. In the front, from left to right, are Tim Glotflety, Chad Fousek, Margaret Mastej, Heidi Hare, April Kyle, and Erik Wood. Lots of times I had to drop that project and turn my attention to some local costume work. I never had the luxury of putting my mind on one joy at a time.

> So that is why Christmas is so uncontrollable for me now! Maybe it is because I lost a few brain cells in surgery, and it is not easy to do several things a the same time with only one usable hand. It is not as easy for me to dash between several work stations, so everything takes longer, and to try to work at several different kinds of projects at the same place causes confusion. Just keeping the tools for writing, serious art, craftwork, mail, and other life business

The girls also started to make ornaments. Claire wanted Some way I composed at to replace the old popcorn chain they made about 10 years ago. We found ourselves fighting over the scissors, glue bottle, and glue around, and which was the primary motivation for my trip to Grantsville yesterday. My biggest regret was that it took me away from home on a rare weekday when my girls are home with me. I brought the fresh supply home just in time to see them drive away for another night at their father's place.

It is true that the holidays are the worst time for people suffering from any kind of loss. The holidays hold too many memories about how things used to be. I can remember so many wonderful Christmases when almost everything was perfect. The first Christmas I can clearly remember was almost to death and, unfortunately, my Tiggery lost a lot of his stuffing faster than Lassie did

We also had the privilege twice to have the joy of a new baby in our family around for Christmas. It was not just after my own were born that I was crazy about little babies, with their scent and their tiny hands that go way back when Carol, Barry, and Scott arrived home. I come by it honestly, as anyone who sees the photographs of my Daddy holding his babies would know that he did not love anything more than babies, especially his own. Like most 1950s families we did the photograph Christmas cards. That is one excellent tradition, and it is fun to see how we changed each year as we grew up.

I think that Margaret Hershberger Wagner has almost the whole collection of them, and she often told me how she used to love them. Of course, we were not quite as cute once we reached preteen years. These days it gets harder and harder to get together for a good family snapshot. I finally have given up. This Thanksgiving we failed to get all the cousins for Gram's Christmas card pic-

Sign-Up Available For Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program

The state of Maryland and the District of Columbia have received funding to restore wildlife habitat through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP). The sign-up resource for developing outperiod is currently open door classrooms where through Friday, Jan. 28.

"This is the seventh signup that has provided opportunities for farmers and landowners to create wildlife habitat through WHIP," said NRCS state conservationist David Doss. Previous funding provided costshare reimbursement to farmers, landowners, and schools that planted grassland habitat or restored riparian buffers, streambanks, and wetlands for wildlife habitat. WHIP conservation practices restore and manage habitat to benefit game birds, song birds, waterfowl, and other wildlife.

WHIP is a voluntary conservation program that provides technical and financial assistance to landowners and managers to restore upland, wetland, and riparian habitat areas on their property. The program provides full flexibility to landowners, offering cost-share agreements that usually range from 5 to 10 years in duration.

"Maryland enjoyed tremendous success during previous enrollment periods by assisting landowners to implement WHIP conservation practices," said Mark Waggoner, NRCS Maryland WHIP program man-ager. "WHIP funding can help landowners pay for the planned restoration of upland habitat (primarily native warm-season grasses), riparian buffers, shallow water areas, wetlands, and control of exotic invasive plants (such as phragmites) when needed to restore native habitat."

wildlife can be studied."

Based on Maryland's identified wildlife habitat priorities, conservation practices eligible for WHIP funding in Maryland include:

*restoration of grassland habitat in field borders and entire fields; restoration of riparian buffers with trees, shrubs, or herbaceous plants; *stabilization of streambanks with trees, shrubs, or herbaceous plants; *restoration of wetlands; establishment of shallow water areas for wildlife.

Participants are especially encouraged to restore habitats to their native plant communities.

To qualify for WHIP, the application must consist of at least one acre of eligible wildlife habitat improvement practices, or at least $300 of WHIP cost-share assistance. NACS may waive these requirements for outdoor classroom educational projects. Lands already enrolled in other USDA programs such as the Conservation Reserve Program, Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, and the Wetlands Reserve Program are not eligible for WHIP.

Treatment Options for Flu Symptoms

Influenza (flu) can be an annoying inconvenience or a major illness, depending on the age and condition of the person affected and the flu strains that emerge each year. Because of the nationwide shortage of flu vaccine this year, it is important for those at highest risk for serious flu complications to be immunized. In general, the flu is a commonly spread viral infection of the lungs and airways. It most often causes symptoms that are more severe than those of a cold. Such symptoms may include a fever, runny nose, sore throat, cough, headache, muscle aches, and a general

Although the main treatment for the flu is to rest and drink plenty of fluids, there are prescription and non-prescription drugs that can make the flu victim feel better. Antibiotics usually don't help because it is caused by a virus, not bacteria. Antiviral medications that are used to prevent the flu's onset can also be helpful in its treatment. Amantidine, zanamivir, or oseltamiv are all prescription drugs that, when given in the first day or two of illness, can shorten symptoms by a day, on average. Nasal decongestants like pseudoephredrine can help relieve symptoms but should be avoided in people with irregular heartbeats or high blood pressure.

As Farms Spread Out, Farmers Are Facing A New Challenge

By Rachael Jackson Capital News Service

WASHINGTON Farmer John Swaine III tills soil near St. Michaels, grows corn in Royal Oak and harvests soybeans on Tilghman Island. His "farm" is broken into more than 60 different parcels of property, some as many as 25 miles apart. A good chunk of his time is spent on the road, frustrating motorists as he cruises in his tractor at 20 mph.

paying the bills. Like many small and organic farmers in the state, they cannot afford to quit their day jobs. But they are not about to give up the farming life.

"It's a delicate tightrope that we both walk," said Howard, who has to balance his job and his farm with taking his children to athletic events. "But the rewards for both of us I think are phenomenal. An evening at the farm picking vegetables is by far one of the most rewarding evenings anybody could spend with their wife and kids."

Bruce Gardner, interim dean at the University of Maryland College of Agriculture, said the population of part-time farmers is growing. Many of them start out in other professions and come to farming for the outdoors lifestyle.

"They really feel like their heart is in farming, but it's not generating enough money," he said.

Bruce Mertz, executive director of Future Harvest/ CASA, a sustainable agriculture non-profit, agreed that part-time farming is becoming a norm.

"A large majority of farmers have off-farm income, whether it's driving a school bus or having a fulltime job," he said.

They include people like Thurmont resident Rick Hood, the chief operations officer at an electronics plant in Frederick who also grows organic produce on a 27-acre farm, and Ken Staver, who raises corn and soybeans, but works studying water quality at the University of Maryland.

terest in starting small farms is so great that extension agent Terry Poole gives introductory classes. Each spring and fall he offers weekly two-hour sessions to about 35 students.

"The target audience is people that are essentially new or inexperienced in agriculture," he said. "It's the new blood. . . These are people that have established

Poole, who has developed teaching materials that are used across the country, said his primary advice for new farmers is to do their homework.

"They'll get this idea that they want to raise something and they go ahead and do it and they have no market," he said.

Poole suggests that new farmers raise niche products such as specialty vegetables or organic cattle.

With savvy marketing, In Frederick County, in- Jack Gurley said it is even possible to make a decent living off a small farm. Gurley farms a mere five acres of organic vegetables in Baltimore County, but neither he nor his wife work off their farm.

"Farming is 25 percent farming and 75 percent marketing and selling," he said. "There's a lot of farmers out there that can grow very excellent produce and very other careers and now few that can sell it."

Farmers Looking To Side Jobs, Niche Crops, More Acreage

By Rachael Jackson Capital News Service

WASHINGTON - As commodity prices drop and technology increases, the mid-sized farms that used to McGinnis said. provide enough income to support rural families in Maryland are fading away, say agriculture officials.

With market forces making it harder to live off a mid-sized farm, career farmers are being forced to work ever larger, more scattered patches of land, while professionals who are taking on farming as a second career that focus on niche crops.

Farms are "hollowing out," said James C. Wade, director of the Center for Agriculture and Natural Resity of Maryland.

once was." Wade said. Where about one-third of Maryland farms made between $10,000 and $100,000 in sales in 1982, those farms land. had fallen to slightly more than one-fifth of the total operations in the state by 2002, the year of the most recent agriculture census. By that time, more than 60 percent of Maryland farms were bringing in annual sales of less than $10,000. "It takes a lot more land to make enough money to survive these days," said Valerie Connelly of the Maryland Farm Bureau. "In order to make a profit they have to get more yield per acre and grow more acres. "It's a lot more expensive to farm because we're not using horses or plows anymore. We're using expensive combines," Connelly

Farmers nowadays also invest more in fancy fertilizers, chemicals, and even global positioning systems, she said "In order to justify the larger equipment you have to have more acreage because the profit margin is so slim," said Wayne Mc-Ginnis, a Baltimore County

And farmers have to become more specialized. One hundred years ago, Mc-Ginnis' grandfather raised "sheep, hogs, geese, a few cows, and some horses,"

But now, while McGinnis' operation has grown to 1,800 acres, it is limited to corn, soybeans, and some beef cattle.

That need for additional land is forcing grain farmers to travel long distances to boost their acreage, and is converting their farms into a patchwork of properties.

"In Maryland, the majorare opting for smaller farms ity of farmers are farming parcels that are not contiguous," Connelly said. "They're picking up parcels wherever they're available."

Trustee will offer for sale at public auction (i) 2815 Chi snut Ridge Road, Grantsville, Garrett County, Maryland (Tax Parcel: 3013650), (ii) 10300 National Highway, NW, Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland Tax Parcel: 06-004040), and (iii) 823 East Oak, Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland (Tax Parcel: 06-004040), (and Carrett County, Maryland (Tax Parcel: 06-004040)).

cel: 17-001779) (collectively, the "Mortgaged Premises"), at the main doors of the Courthouse for the Circuit Court for Garrett Co inty, 203 South 4th Street, Oakland, Maryland 21550, on December 28, 2004, AT 12:00 O'CLOCK P.M.

BEING THE SAME AS ALL THAT LOT OF GROUND AND THE IMPROVEMENTS THEREON situated in Allegany County, Maryland, and in Garrett County, Maryland, and more particularly described on Exhibit A to the aforereferenced Deed of Trust (and in the Deed of Trust as the "Deed of Trust Property"), which consists of three (3) parcels of land and improvements thereon.

Bidders will be allowed to bid on each Lot individually and/ or all Lots jointly. Subject to the Trustee's right to switch the order of bidding, the Mortgaged Premises shall first be offered for bid jointly (i.e. all the Lots together for a single combined bid for all Lots) (the "Joint Bidding"). Promptly following the Joint Bidding, a second round of bidding will occur pursuant to which each Lot that is part of the Mortgaged Premises shall be offered for bid separately (the "Individual Bidding"). Subject to the terms below relating to the subsequent default by a successful bidder, in the event that the highest amount bid jointly for the combined Lots in the Joint Bidding exceeds the aggregate highest amounts bid separately for the Lots in the Individual Bidding, then the Mortgaged Premises shall be sold together to the highest bidder from the Joint Bidding. On the other hand, but subject to the terms below relating to the subsequent default by a successful bidder, in the event the aggregate highest amounts bid separately for the Lots in the Individual Bidding exceeds the highest amount bid for the combined Lots in the Joint Bidding, then the Mortgaged Premises shall be sold as separate Lots to the separate highest individual bidders from the Individual Bidding, in any foreclosure sale conducted as set forth above it shall be possible, depending upon whether the successful-bidder(s)/bid(s) is/are successful on the basis of joint or separate bids, for there to be as few as one successful bidder and/ or as many as three successful bidders and, accordingly, for there to be multiple and different scenarios under which one or more of such otherwise successful bidder(s) could default on their bid(s). Accordingly, and to eliminate the inefficiency and potential economic risk to Borrower and Lender from successive failed foreclosure sales, Lender shall have the right to declare "back-up" winners (the "Back-up Winners"). In the event that the Lender shall determine to select Back-up Winners, then the Lender shall announce their identity prior to the conclusion of the above-described bid and foreclosure process, it being the intent of the Lender to select as Back-up Winners that person, or those persons, whose bid(s) will yield the greatest proceeds without, however, exposing Lender to a potential second default by the same bidder. Only qualified bidders will be allowed to bid -- prior to bidding, bidders must deposit cashier's or certified check in the amount of $50,000 for each Lot the bidder will bid upon.

TERMS OF SALE: Cash deposit of $50,000 per Lot to be paid at the time and place of sale, except no deposit shall be required by note holder, its successors or assigns, and the same cash deposit may be used for both the Joint Bidding and the Individual Bidding. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash at settlement, which shall be within thirty (30) days following the auction unless such period is extended by the Trustee, his successors or assigns, for good cause shown; time is of the essence; interest at the rate of 91 1% per annum to be paid on unpaid purchase money from date of sale to settlement. Property to be sold subject to all conditions, liens, restrictions and agreements of record affecting same, if any, and to existing leases, if any, except that it is the intent of the Trustee that any such items as may be extinguished by virtue of the foreclosure sale be extinguished. In the event purchaser fails to settle when required, property will be re-sold at purchaser's risk and expense (with defaulting purchaser liable for any readvertising and trustee's and attorneys' fees and costs arising in connection with failure) (although Trustee shall also have the right to convey to appropriate Back-Up Winner(s), if any). Taxes, water and all other municipal liens are to be adjusted to the date of sale. All other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis to be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes, document preparation and title insurance to be borne by purchaser. Purchaser (as well as Back-up Winners, if any) may be required to execute a memorandum of sale at the time of sale. Back-up Winners' (if any) bids will be required to remain open for 40 days and deposits from Back-up Winners will be deposited and held by Trustee as security for their bids

(and, if not used, will promptly be refunded).
Improvements being sold, "as-is", whereas and without warranty, implied or express, of any kind, including without warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose and with purchaser responsible for all building and other code violations and all defaults life any) by the landlord to existing tenants.

Tickets Available For Mountain Md. PACE Reception

Tickets are still available for the upcoming Mountain Maryland PACE Reception in Annapolis, slated for Thursday and Friday, Jan. 27-28, at the Loews Annapolis Hotel. The PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) event will feature a Thursday evening dinner from 6 to 8:30 p.m., and a Friday morning legislative breakfast from 8:30 to 10 a.m.

The annual reception is a cooperative effort between Garrett and Allegany counties that provides local business and government representatives the opportunity to meet with key legislators and staff from the Maryland General Assembly during the 2005 legislative session. In recent years the PACE Reception has drawn on average from 750 to 800 participants.

This year's theme is "Tourism, Commerce, Partnerships - Gateways to Progress," and a number of displays will be based on that theme. Among the confirmed exhibitors are the International Adventure Sports Center, Bill's Marine Service, and the Wisp Resort. Another highlight of Vehicle Mishaps the event will be the unveiling of Maryland's new "Mountain Maryland" license plate. One ticket entitle ticipants to attend the proceedings of both days. The price is $100 per ticket through tomorrow, Dec. 31, and $115 thereafter until Monday, Jan. 17, which is the last day to make a purchase. Round-trip bus transportation is available from the Cumberland Holiday Inn at a cost of $20.

To purchase tickets, and to receive a list of Annapolis hotels that can provide nearby lodging, persons may call Carol Riley in the Garrett County board of commissioners office at 301-334-8970.

Garrett's Welfare Caseload Down By Nearly 87%

The state of Maryland has made historic strides in reducing its welfare caseload, with only 66,725 persons receiving benefits in November, according to Gov. Robert Ehrlich Jr.

Garrett County's Temporary Cash Assistance caseload in January 1995 was 936. In November of this year, the load was 122. This represents a decrease of 86.97%

While several states in the country have experienced slight increases or stable caseloads in recent years, Maryland's figures continue to drop, the governor said. The welfare program in the state dropped nearly 10% in just the past 12 months.

"This is significant," Ehrlich said. "The fact that we continue to reach record lows in the number of people receiving benefits demonstrates two things: Maryland's economy is strong, and the people want to work."

The state reached historic lows earlier this year, and news that caseloads declined again in December indicated that even more people have become economically independent, he said. Studies are showing that former recipients in Maryland are leaving welfare for work, and, in most cases, are remaining employed.

ONLY A THIN CRUST of ice had started to form on Deep Creek Lake earlier this week before rising temperatures turned it back into water. Ice-fishermen must be a little frustrated by this time, usually a season when they are able to engage in their favorite sport. But unseasonably warm weather has settled upon the mountaintop and is to remain for a while.

The forecast for the next week is full of rain and 50degree days - not optimal for anyone hoping for ice or snow. However, all winter-lovers, take heart: The Farmer's Almanac predicts that the true winter weather will arrive in mid- to late January, and hang around until late March. Hollow Road.

Seven people were injured in three separate accidents last Thursday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Five people were transported following a twovehicle accident at the intersection of Rt. 135 and Sand Flat Road at 4:30 p.m. Ethel Kathleen Lohr, 32, Swanton, was operating a 1989 Oldsmobile that struck a 1999 Plymouth, operated by Tammy Jo Burns, 29, Deer Park. Burns and four juveniles were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Deer Park firefighters also assisted at the scene. Charges are pending.

In another incident, Lisa K. Baker of Swanton had to be extracted from her vehicle following a two-vehicle accident on Oakland Sang Run Road in front of the Garrett County Animal Shelter

According to police, Baker's vehicle was exiting the Animal Shelter and pulled her vehicle too far into the roadway and was struck by a vehicle driven by Lori A. DelSignore, Oakland. DelSignore attempted to swerve and avoid striking the vehicle, but hit the Baker vehicle in the driver's side front end.

No charges were tiled in the 10:55 a.m. incident. Southern Rescue Squad and Oakland firefighters assisted

Icy road conditions were to blame for a single-vehicle accident on Rt. 135 at approximately 4:50 p.m. Renata Lee Rodeheaver, 46, Oakland, lost control of her vehicle on the icy road, crossed the eastbound lane. Continued on Page A-16

Seven Injured In Gorman Area Resident Narrowly Three Different Escapes Blaze On Christmas Day

Embers falling from a Southern Rescue Squad. wood stove have been ruled There were no injuries rethe cause of a Christmas ported. day house fire that threatened the life of a Gorman Grantsville, Bittinger, and area resident.

Danny Arbogast barely escaped the one-story wood-frame structure, located at 8491 George Washington Highway, just west of Gorman, after he was awakened by the heat being generated by the fire.

According to a report from the Maryland State Fire Marshal's office, Arbogast was sleeping in the living room of the house when the embers ignited combustible material that was in front of the stove just before 2 a.m. Saturday. He escaped without major injury and called 911 for assis-

Responding to the scene were fire units and about 40 firefighters from the Gorman, Oakland, Bayard, and Aurora volunteer fire departments. It took them about 30 minutes to bring the blaze under control.

Damages were estimated to be $15,000 to the structure and an additional $5,000 to the contents. The house is owned by Earl Rinker, who provided shelter to Arbogast after he exited the house.

The report said that the suspended. DeWitt was house was not equipped with smoke alarms.

Also responding to the scene was the county air cascade unit from the Deep Creek VFC, along with the De Visser, who has visited Garrett County four times, has said all the pastors on his staff survived the tidal waves that hit the island nation, but that several families in various churches have perished. As of yesterday afternoon, the death toll in Sri Lanka stood at 23,000, with the overall approaching 80,000. Rev. de Visser reported that the devastation is "unbelievable" and has left him and others "stunned."

The quake, a 9.0 on the Richter scale, is the most powerful in four decades and the fourth largest in a century, according to news reports. Its epicenter was in the Indian Ocean some 250 kilometers (155 miles) from Banda Aceh, Sumatra.

Mennonite Central Committee (MCC, the relief and development arm of the Mennonite and Brethren in Christ churches) has designated $75,000 as an immediate response to the devastating Asian earthquake and tsunamis that took place Sunday, Dec. 26.

The funds are being requested by local partners in the area and will be used to purchase clothing, food, water, fuel, and health items. All of the materials will be purchased in the countries, Berg said /

"We are in contact with our partners in the region

Funds raised through the and waiting to hear further as to what the needs will be," said Ed Martin, MCC director for Central and Southern Asia program. "But this initial amount of The TriState Relief Sale funds allows us to respond while planning for a longer term response.

According to Berg, MCC currently has 10 North American workers, along with five children, in Indonesia. There are two workers and two children in Sri Lanka, five workers in India, and one worker in Thailand. There are also dozens of local workers in the affected areas.

The workers include Ed and Twila Miller from Akron, Pa., who are the country representatives for the MCC India program.

"All MCC workers are safe," Berg said.

In the affected areas, MCC's work focuses on peace-building, education, agricultural development, health, income generation, and food security.

"MCC will continue to work with local partners to investigate the situation and develop long-range plans," Berg said.

The education comment is a nod to the Thornton' Law, Republican Gov. Robert Ehrlich's sweeping education reform bill passed in 2002. Despite their different party affiliations, for the most part Ehrlich and Miller have agreed on slots legislation, believing machines should be privately owned and placed at existing locations. Busch has always maintained that if slots must exist, then their assets and benefits should be in the hands of Maryland taxpayers.

"I don't think it's an appropriate way to fund your government," Busch said.

However, if approached by Ehrlich and Miller, he said he would be open to further negotiations. "I always listen," he said. "(But slots legislation) hasn't been at the top of my list."

Busch said one major obstacle to slots is that many Marylanders do not seem to want them in their area, with some people believing they are immoral, or could lead to increased

It's Never Enough...

As the United States government and scores no, probably hundreds - of United States businesses and non-profit organizations, plus probably millions of individual U.S. citizens, are feverishly collecting millions of dollars in relief aid for the nations that were struck by the devastating tsunami this week, we are nonetheless being hammered with criticism from the United Nations and various other nations and spokespersons.

Practically before the final tsunami wave even receded, the U.S. was called "stingy" by a UN official. An initial pledge of $15 million, quickly followed by an increase to $35 million, was not enough, even though the figure will absolutely go much higher. The pledge by President Bush to provide this support, and his comments of sympathy for the victims, were virtually wiped out by the criticism that he didn't speak soon enough. Yet, within hours we did, by order of the commander-in-chief, have military people either on the scene or en route to the devastated areas. The president almost immediately ordered military planes into the air to look for survivors. Others, within hours, were loaded with immediate-need supplies and sent to the region. But he didn't speak soon enough.

Meanwhile, the aforementioned businesses, organizations, and individual Americans have leaped into action to provide money and supplies. But that doesn't seem to be enough.

Now, there are a few givens here. Yes, President Bush should have spoken at least within 24 hours after the disaster. Yes, the United States is in the position to be able to provide the largest share of the relief that is needed. We are a wealthy nation when compared to most others. Yes, we use way more natural resources than we really need. And yes, Americans have, in general, far more money and material possessions than most other nations have.

But we also have a very good record of coming to the aid of other nations in need, not only during disasters, but also militarily (remember WWI, WWII, Korea, Vietnam, etc. etc. etc.?). We are a caring people We regularly help our own, and we help people of other countries. We have compassion, and we demonstrate it. The fact of the matter is, we really wouldn't have to do anything when other nations desperately need assistance.

Secretary of State Colin Powell stated it well when he explained in response to the "stingy" label that additional commitment of funds will be forthcoming, but needs assessment must be done along the way. This is a prudent approach.

This is one American writer who is growing extremely weary of our nation and its leaders being regularly and routinely slammed at every turn, both by some of our own people and those of other nations, simply for political reasons. Even a human tragedy of this magnitude is apparently not off limits for some who wish to score political points against the president and the United States.

for the United States leads the list in dollars of and that are committed. Japan is close behind with a pledge of about $30 million. The next biggest pledge is that of Australia at just under $8 million. Germany, Britain, and France are three reasonably wealthy nations, yet Germany has pledged just $1.3 million, Britain a measly $100,000, and France isn't even on the list. Neither are Israel, Saudi Arabia, or Egypt, all pretty wealthy oil-producing nations. Where is the criticism of these countries? Where is the outrage?

Oh, and have Osama bin Laden, Al-Queda, and Hammas, those great lovers of God, made pledges

It is true, as some oppoare subsidizing wind energy. Development of wind power is encouraged with a production tax credit that provides a 1.8-cent per kilowatt-hour credit for electricity produced from a wind farm during the first 10 farms are also provided relief from the alternative minimum tax for the first four years of turbine operation. But so what? Americans should be willing to pay this price for clean air and to ensure less dependence on foreign sources of energy. This country (i.e., you, the taxpayer) also subsidizes oil and gas production by reducing or eliminating royalties in certain circumstances. Tax relief is also provided to oil and gas companies by allowing them to expense certain capital expenditures in the year they occur rather than depreciating them over time. We also pay millions, maybe billions, of dollars each year to maintain undisrupted shipping lanes in the Persian Gulf and safe shipping in U.S. ports. As for the noise that wind turbines make, the Department of Energy recommends 45-60 decibels at 200 feet. Some turbines have been measured in the neighborhood of 75 decibels. To put things in perspective, normal conversation is 60 decibels. In contrast, snowmobiles register 80 decibels at 50 feet and a 4-stroke motorcycle is about 100 decibels (keep in mind, you sit on these machines). A chain saw is about 120 decibels. "Namaste" by David Foster

The tragic events of this weekend's tsunami that encompassed huge portions of southeast Asia's coasts, and spread all the way to Africa, are horrors beyond the description of mere words. The video images and their sounds send chills down the spine, even after repeated

The island nation of Sri Lanka, for centuries known as The Pearl of the Indian Ocean" for its natural beauty, bore a huge brunt of the waves' cold fury. The interviews with native survivors (when the TV networks shifted away from stories of western tourists which have been dominating the coverage) bring to mind a year spent in company of those gentle people. I had the privilege to converse with many Sri Lankans, reveling in their sing-song accents (to these provincial American ears) and their bright, broad smiles. Racked by civil war and rebellion for many years, at the cost of many thousands of lives, Sri Lanka was one of the world's top exporters of people - its own people while I was working at La Casa in Buffalo, N.Y. La Casa is a refugee center housed in an old grade school building that serves as a way station for the world's dispersed from many countries.

Among the many treasured memories from that time is nents note, that taxpayers the Sri Lankans' common greeting for each other and us workers. They were not ones to shake hands. Their culture's greeting involves pressed one's hands together in front of the chest, bowing the head, and "Namaste." The greeting, as powerful in its own way as a n handshake, is swathed in gentleness as the word "Namaste" means "I honor the Lord's presence within you." (Loosely translated.) It is quite a humbling experiyears of its operation. Wind ence to receive, and to give, such a greeting.

Another recollection involves the World Cup of men's soccer, which was being played at the time of our stint at the refugee center. It was a huge deal for all the refugees, who would gather together around the building's one television to cheer for their respective national teams in a cacophony of different languages.

The friendly competition also extended to the kitchen, where at times groups of refugees would take turns cooking for the 100 to 200 "guests" and workers. They delighted in their cooking and took great joy in being able to serve one another a taste of their homelands. It was also a delight to make the "Americans," also playfully referred to as "Gringos," sweat when we ate the hot, spicy foods.

The first to take a turn at kitchen were usually the Central Americans, who cooked food that would send the kitchen of any Chi-Chi's restaurant up in flames.

Not to be outdone, the next week the Africans (most from Somalia, Ethiopia, and Eritrea) would set our mouths afire with even hotter dishes. The Sri Lankans, however, would laughingly gobble up both cuisines without so much as batting an eye; we wondered about that, and discovered the following week that we'd been had - the Sri Lankans turned out delicious and super-spicy dishes that all but exploded off the plate. Never in my life could I image food so hot that it seemed it would melt the plate. But we loved it all.

I guess those memories, spawned by an unfeeling, unseeing, wrath of nature, don't stack up to the disaster, but perhaps they hold a small key to putting the world back together after the tragedy.

As Father Robert Arpin once wrote:

"Our world is becoming a small island. We are increasingly dependent on each other. We cannot make it alone. We must care for one another; we must love one another - that is, after all, the message of Jesus. Jesus doesn't need our love, people do. God doesn't need us, we need God, and the only way we can find God is in each other. Anybody who is sick or lonely or suffering is our brother or sister. Tell them they are loved, not by God alone, but by you too. Because the only hands God has to touch them are your hands; the only heart God has to love them with is your heart; and the only way they will see the love of God is when they see it in your eyes and experience it in your hugs and help."

Namaste, indeed.

In closing and as my final word on this subject, this wind mill debate has led me to realize for the first time in my life the need to embrace the environmentalist motto of " thinking globally and acting locally.

To the Editor: Thank you for seeking the truth about the windplants coming to Garrett County. Your willingness to keep an open mind and convey new information demonstrates the kind of leadership Garrett County needs at this time Now that our commissioners and state legislators have firmly stated they will continue to support wind-plant projects in Garrett County, what hope is there in curtailing construction until comprehensive studies have been conducted on the economic and environmental impacts? How can we believe the anticipated tax revenues when so much of the original information about wind plants turned out to be misleading?

Construction of 67 wind turbines will begin in the spring if something does not happen to halt the process. Our local leaders have turned their backs on the citizens they represent. Garrett County residents are now out in the cold, left to defend themselves from the unknowns surrounding

"What Am I Doing Here?" Perhaps it seems a bit late in the day to be asking this question. After all, I have been here for nearly four months already. The fact is, though, that people keeping asking me, "What are you doing here?"

It is quite an amazing experience to sit alongside of students for a month or two, apparently as invisible to them as the sundry angels and saints who crowd about us, and then one day she or he turns to one and asks, "What are you doing here?" Evidently, this is meant as an icebreaker. Whether it is courtesy or my own neediness that prevents me I do not know, but as of yet I have not replied, 'None of your bloody bee's wax!"

No, I explain that while I am old as students go (49 on my last birthday) I am here as a doctoral student on exchange from blah, blah, blah. Sometimes the person even talks to me again after that.

Oh, my dirty little secret is that I am in the full throes of mid-life crisis and I haven't an appetite for sports cars so I am doing a doctorate instead.

My son, my youngest child, graduated from high school in June. For him I am delighted that he is going to college, that he is spreading his wings, that he is becoming an adult. For me, however, all that wonderful transformation in his life feels like a great, big, empty hole in mine. As a measure of "how big" I thought there might be a chance that Paris could fill it.

I had served as pastor of the same congregation for 21 years. I knew it was time for me to leave. I also thought it wise to leave before the church members discovered that it was time for me to leave.

When is the time to leave? As a pastor of a marginal church, it was the time when I believed that they could go forward without me. In that sense, I was at the same point in my relationship with both my son and my church

To put it another way, I am in Paris in an attempt to turn mid-life crisis into mid-life crossroads, the crossroads of my life. Death comes when God wills, but Social Security comes for me after age 67. Somehow I have to get from here to there.

"Retooling" is good word. I have been discovering for a decade or so that I was trying to do work for which I did not have the necessary tools. As best as I could figure, a doctorate in philosophy was the right opportunity for assembling those tools.

But why Paris? To which one could provide sufficient reply in "Why not Paris?" Besides President Bush and Secretary Rumsfeld, who wouldn't like to spend a year in Something interesting happened on the way to a Ph.D. I discovered that I had important spiritual roots in France. My beloved John Calvin, the great sixteenth century Reformer of Geneva and the father of modern democracy, was a Frenchman. One of his biographers said of him that during the entire time he spent in Geneva he was dreaming of France.

Calvin, through his writings, introduced me to another great Frenchman who had lived four hundred years earlier, St. Bernard of Clairvaux. To give an idea of St. Bernard's role in history, he is one of the few people about whom it could be said that to have become pope would have been a demotion. As a thinker and a man of action he has few rivals in human history.

The third native of France to guide my spiritual life is that gentle and bold Maid of Orleans, St. Joan of Arc to whom Mark Twain introduced me through his inspired biography. I have a sense that she goes before me, and that I am as unworthy of her leadership as that feckless human king whom she served with her life and death. From her heavenly king, I am sure, she has received a more fitting reward.

This trio, St. Bernard, St. Joan and Calvin beckoned me to join them in their homeland.

There is a sense in which they challenge me with the question of the day at another level, "What are you doing

It is a question to ask, standing on the brink of a new year and at any and every time of one's life. In other words, "Why has God put me here?"

I have come to Paris to ask that question with some critical distance from the people and the world which constitute my "here." Perhaps I am as spiritually far-sighted as I am physically far-sighted. For me, the right distance increases rather than diminishes clarity of sight.

In this larger sense, the answer to the question, "What am I doing here?" is simple if somewhat unsatisfying: "I don't know, but I hope to find out.

> Our family and this community have lost someone very special. She was on the church Relay For Life Team, an O-blood donor, treasurer of Southern Garrett Band Boosters and active in the 12/15/65 - 12/16/04 Red House 4-H Club. She worked for 20+ years at First United National Bank where she enjoyed her job because of the customers. She greeted each customer with a smile and remembered them by name.

It has been a difficult loss, but it is because of the kindness of so many that we are getting through it. We are fortunate to live in a community where 🤻 so many people care and have extended their arms to us for a hug, their kind words in sympathy, their tears to show they care and their talents in preparing a meal.

We would like to say thank you to each of those who have reached out to our family in every way. Each card, phone call, prayer and hug has been . greatly appreciated.

We would also like to say a special thank you to the members of the Southern Garrett Band who served as pall bearers, to Tom Woods and the staff of Southern High School, Keith Harvey and the staff and students for all the cards from Yough Glades and Doug Gaither and the staff at Broad Ford School. Thunk you to Southern Garrett Rescue Squad members who first responded and those who reached out first to pick us up.

"Thank You" seems so inadequate for all the kindness everyone has offered but it is so gratefully appreciated.

To the Editor: Why is public debate of medical malpractice liability about protecting doctors instead of about protecting patients? Current public policy allows doctors as many errs and omissions as their peers will tolerate. Because medical malpractice review boards discipline only the most spectacular butchers, insurance companies can charge heinous rates and make them stick.

Today there is a battle between three heavily armed lobbies while a public caught in the crossfire continues to bleed unabated. Doctors hold communities hostage to their failure to take butchers' li censes while insurance companies buy politicians to guarantee margins, and lawyers, the least of the problem, pick both their bones. Will visionaries in public office save us? Erhlich crafted a plan keeping as many butchers as possible practicing medicine in Maryland while guaranteeinsurers' margins reing main at extortion levels. Erhlich's plan shifts 30 million dollars a year of direct medical malpractice liability costs onto taxpayers, yet does nothing to reduce medical malpractice against $

Where are the honest brokers here? Instead of the truth that the crisis is caused by doctors' failure to police their profession and exacerbated by insurance companies wanting paid off for keeping doctors' secrets, we are bombarded from all sides of the issue with hysterical threats against the public health.

How many readers know that in a study of 35,000 doctors [admitting/ convicted of] at least two malpractice incidents since 1992 the medical community disciplined fewer than How many readers know that in the same study medical community disciplined just 13% of doctors with five medical malpractice awards against them? Who wants to estimate the damage to individuals and families caused by these 35,000 doctors?

How many know that Americans spend more on dog food each year than on medical malpractice? How many know that the majority of million dollar jury awards are reduced by judges or set aside by appeals courts? How many know that in a majority of high dollar malpractice cases the parties sign agreements limiting maximum and guaranteeing minimum awards before the jury announces a verdict?

Rational reform includes lay-citizen boards empowered to review medical malpractice claims in public in every county and empowered to suspend or revoke licenses as well as levy fines against doctors and hospitals. Citizen review boards with teeth could reduce medical malpractice costs by 67% percent in Maryland in five years.

Rational reform might add 30 million a year to the state deficit, but it won't be

Adorable Adoptables

IS THIS YOUR BLACK CAT? He was brought to the Garrett County Animal Shelter as a stray and is described as being very social and affectionate. Available for adoption is Kolt (pictured above right), a brown tabby who was given up by his owner. Kolt is about 9 months old and is said to be friendly. Also available for adoption are a gray and white tabby and an orange and white tabby, both pictured below. The 9-month-old siblings were brought to the shelter together. "Both girls are sweet and affectionate, just waiting for a new home to call their own," said a HART (Homeless Animal Rescue Transport) of Garrett County spokesperson. For more information about these or other available pets, persons may call the animal shelter at 301-334-3553.

Grantsville After-School Program Notes Activities

The Partners After School @ Grantsville Program participated in many Christmas activities this season, starting with a trip to Allenberry Dinner Theater in Boiling Springs, Pa., to see the musical, Christmas Dream on Angel Street.

The youths presented an original Christmas musical, A Twilight Christmas, for their parents in the beginning of December. The program sponsored Santa's Workshop at the Grantsville Senior Center. Parents and students made Christmas crafts, went caroling at Starner Hill Apartments, and finished the evening by sharing hot chocolate and cookies.

The youth also visited Goodwill Nursing Home. They delivered handmade stained glass ornaments to the residents and went caroling through the halls.

The group also traveled to CiCi's Pizza and Mountain Reflections at Rocky Gap near Cumberland, where they had hot chocolate and cookies with Santa Claus.

The Partners After School @ Grantsville program is sponsored by the Garrett County Community Action Committee and funded by the Collaborative Supervision and Focused Enforcement Initiative and 21st Century Learning

"Thank you, O Lord, for sending us Susan Gilman's tales...'

Hypocrite in a Pouffy White Dress by Susan Jane Gilman

What do you want to be when you grow up? I love to ask kids that question, and I've gotten some pretty funny answers. One little girl told me that she wanted to be a ballerina and a doctor and a singer.

Wouldn't that be a physician's appointment you'd

So what did you want to be, growing up? In the memoir Hypocrite in a Pouffy White Dress by Susan Jane Gilman (c.2004, Warner Books), Gilman wanted to be many things, but what she turned out to be most is funny.

When Gilman was 4 years old, she wanted to be a movie star, so her mother signed her up for a part in a hippie "documentary." Gilman imagined her glamorous self becoming the envy of her friends, but the movie was less than memorable. Gilman decided that if she wanted to be a real star, she alone would have to make it happen. In grade school, Gilman decided she wanted to be a ballerina and Batgirl, but most of all, she wanted to be special. She decided that being Susan Gilman wasn't h, so she "became" a ballerina, and she told her classmates that her parents were changing her name to Sapphire, and that she had a new baby sister. Problem a 2-year-old brother, After the truth came out, Gilman arned that being herself was much more fun than lying. As she was growing up, Gilman tried hard to fit in. She brains and wit - a good combination if you're an adult, but guaranteed pariah-making if you're a kid. Gilman writes about adolescence and the hormonal rush of trying to lose her virginity when she couldn't get a real honest-to-goodness date with a boy because boys saw her as the buddy-type. This was before she woke up one morning, with a - whoa! - need for a first bra.

From there to college, her first job, and beyond, Susan Jane Gilman writes about what it's like to grow up in a less-than-Ozzie-and-Harriet household, how it feels to come face-to-face with a past you never knew existed, and how wonderful it is to find someone who accepts you as you are and loves you anyhow.

Hypocrite in a Pouffy White Dress is a memoir that's difficult to describe. On one hand, it's hard to figure out when Gilman is "pulling your leg" and when she's not exaggerating, which makes reading this book like spending a fun afternoon with a friend who is known for embellishment. On the other hand, Gilman's chapter on the school Christmas play, and especially her chapter about accompanying teenagers to Poland, will make you want to cry.

Hypocrite in a Pouffy White Dress is a great book for you if you ever wanted to be someone other than who you were when you were a child. Pick up this book for yourself and for all your favorite grown-ups.

BEST BOOK PICKS 2004

Your calendar says that 2004 is drawing to a close. My calendar says the same thing, but mine also says it's time to choose the books I liked best this year. Of the 200-some books I read this year, here are my picks — in no certain order - for Best Books of the Year 2004...

FICTION Anything You Say Can and Will Be Used Against You by Laurie Lynn Drummond. It was hard to believe that this book was a novel, it was so realistic. Five women police officers in New Orleans talk about their lives and their jobs. A use-your-Christmas-gift-certificate hint: it will be out in paperback soon.

The Circus in Winter by Cathy Day. A grieving man buys a circus in the late 1880s, and his action has repercussions for over a hundred years. This was a debut novel, and I can't wait to see more from this author.

The Mercy Killers by Lisa Reardon. A man caring for his mentally handicapped brother takes the rap when his brother kills a man. He's given a choice: go to prison, or go to Vietnam. Years later, when his brother kills again, the man decides he can't take the blame twice. You'll want to read this book twice, in order to appreciate the brilliance of the storytelling.

Case Histories by Kate Atkinson. A private eye with a past lands three very interesting cases, each one seemingly unsolvable. Part mystery, part comedy, this is one of those books that I was sorry to see end.

Shade by Neil Jordan. A woman is murdered by her best childhood friend and goes back in time to watch herself grow up again. Haunting and beautiful, this book has the best descriptions of war since Hemingway's writings.

NON-FICTION

Inside the Kingdom by Carmen bin Ladin. A jaw-dropping look inside the life of Osama's family. Though this book came out last summer, there are things in here that I'm still talking about.

Jeffrey Gitomer's Little Red Book of Selling by Jeffrey Gitomer. More than a book for salespeople, this is a book about life. It's easy to read, easy to understand, and full of great advice. An excellent book to give to graduates.

The Playmakers by Tim Walsh. A huge book with stories and pictures of all your favorite childhood toys. You won't be able to get through this book without saying "Hey! I had one of those!"

Two Souls Indivisible by James S. Hirsch. Two men are captured in Vietnam; one is black, the other white. The Vietnamese put them in the same cell, thinking it would be the worst kind of punishment, never believing that the men would become friends. This book is full of courage and pride. I loved it.

Las Vegas Weddings by Susan Marg. Okay, so it's not great literature. It's fluffy as a marshmallow, but what can you say about a book that has a whole section on Elvis? Fun, that's what you can say.

So there you have it. My Best Picks for 2004. Season's

Finding Neverland

Rated PG - Running time: 1:46 - Released 12/25/04 Review by Adam Sincell

It has been a long while since I have seen a film as beautiful and as captivating as Finding Neverland. For those of you who are weary of seeing yet another reenactment of the classic Peter Pan story, as there have been numerous remakes and revivals in the past fifteen years, I strongly urge you to give this particular movie a look. Not only does it offer a fine array of brilliant performances, stunning visual effects, and genius imagination, but it more importantly strikes a chord of youth and innocence within the heart of every audience member. Marc Forster (director of 2001's Monster's Ball) gives us a poignant masterpiece (based on true events) that glued me to my seat from start to finish.

Finding Neverland chronicles the struggles of author James M. Barrie (Johnny Depp) to truly wow his audiences with a play that is anything but a flop. We are introduced to Barrie as the curtain rises on his latest accomplishment, which is yet another attempt at a clever farce that is taken too seriously by his stuffy British audience, and it fails miserably. Desperate for fresh inspiration, which he is unable to find in his rocky relationship with his wife Mary (Radha Mitchell), James finds himself strolling through the park on a sunny day when he encounters the widow Sylvia Llewelyn Davies (Kate Winslet) and her boys Jack (Joe Prospero), George (Nick Roud), Michael (Luke Spill), and Peter (Freddie Highmore). Growing rather attached to the Davies family, James eventually begins spending long afternoons with them rather than with his own wife, despite the nerve and persistence of Sylvia's mother, Emma du Maurier (Julie Christie). The family soon becomes the topic of everyone's high tea gossip, and suspicions arise throughout the entire town. However, that does not stop James from becoming enthralled with Sylvia and her four boys, especially young Peter, who has experienced great hardship in dealing with his father's death, as well as the pending fear of his mother Sylvia's failing health. Looking to Peter for inspiration, James begins weaving a vast fantasy world of imagination and wonder which soon becomes the background for Peter Pan, his most successful

This movie has a spectacular sense of originality in its (sometimes very subtle) mix of reality and fantasy. There are a number of images that are hard to erase from one's mind because they are so breathtaking. The forces that propel this movie lie within the performances of the leading actors. Once again, Johnny Depp has proven himself a master player of the screen. The character of J.M.

White Named AD Of Shadow Box Theatre

Evelyn White, formerly of Oakland, has obtained the position of an assistant director of the Shadow Box Cabaret in Columbus, Ohio. She is currently performing in the cabaret's 13th annual Holiday Hoopla, with the final performance set for this evening. White is a graduate of Southern High School, and obtained a bachelor of fine arts degree in theatre at West Virginia University, graduating in May. She is the daughter of John and Lois White, Oakland.

White has a lengthy theatre resumé, having performed in many stage productions, both at college and in Garrett County at Our Town Theatre and other venues. She has remained actively involved in theatrical productions since her college graduation last spring.

Barrie, like many of Depp's other roles, seems to have been written just for him. Kate Winslet, though not entirely permitted to spread her wings here as the wonderful actress that she is, still turns in a very touching portrayal of Sylvia. Dustin Hoffman also contributes his talent to the mix, playing Barrie's faithful producer, Charles Frohman. However, I have to give full-out credit to 12-yearold Freddie Highmore and his performance of young Peter Llewelyn Davies. Never before have I seen acting so flawless and engrossing from a child actor. In my opinion, Highmore's deeply textured abilities as an actor capture the heart of the entire movie. Because of this gifted team of leading men and women, Finding Neverland has no trouble allowing its message to radiate through the screen.

I was highly impressed with this film's ability to tackle such difficult subject matter in a way that is far from cheesy or sentimental. This is not, as some people may suspect, a regurgitation of the old Peter Pan fluff we're all used to. Though delving into the deep realms of magical worlds, this is a very realistic portrayal of the relationship between the young and the old, the wise and the emotionally blind, the mundane and the elements of imagination. I am certain that you will take something of great value away from Finding Neverland. It is classy, sincere, and sim-

FOURTH GRADERS SHOW CARING AND GIVING - Fourth graders at Dennett Road Elementary School put their November and December character traits of caring and giving into action recently. Instead of having a gift exchange this year, they decided to bring supplies for the animals at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. They gave the shelter blankets, leashes, choke chains, treats, toys, and food for both dogs and cats. Bonnie Zimmerman, a control officer for the Animal Shelter, visited the school, and told the students, "We're not here to take your animals. We're here to help you in any way we can." WVU Mountaineer Brad Palmer Looks Forward To Gator Bowl

When the West Virginia University Mountaineers take the gridiron in Jacksonville, Fla., on New Year's Day to face the Florida State Seminoles in the 2005 Toyota Gator Bowl, Garrett County will be represented not only by a number of fans in the stands, but also on the field, as Oakland resident Brad Palmer is a member of the WVU squad.

And not only is Palmer, a member of the team, which is currently ranked 23rd in the nation and earned, for the second year in a row, a share of the Big East title, but he has also been a starter this year and has seen action in every game.

A 2002 graduate of Southern High School and a walk-on his freshman year in WVU's 2002 season, Palmer was listed as a tight end and was red-shirted that season. In the 2003 campaign, he was still listed as a tight end, but was utilized by Coach Rich Rodriguez and his staff as a defensive lineman when injuries had taken a toll on the line positions. He also saw considerable action on special teams. The 6-3, 250-pound sophomore came into the 2004 season listed as a tight end once again, and he saw action at that position in the first few games. But then he was moved to first-team fullback for the University of Connecticut game, and has started at that spot the

Double Red Blood Cell Donations Let Donors Help More - In Fewer Visits

The next upcoming American Red Cross blood drive in Garrett County - slated for Friday, Jan. 7, from noon to 6 p.m. at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Oakland - will again feature double red cell technology, which shows on a blood donor's record as two donations with one procedure, allowing local citizens to spend less time helping patients who need blood.

As always, "regular" (whole blood) donations will also be accepted. Appointments are encouraged for both methods of donation, and can be made by calling 1-800-993-6667, although walk-ins are always welcome. Walkin donors who would like to try the double red blood cell procedure will be accomodated if there is an opening in the schedule.

Why here?

Double red blood cell donation technology has been in use for three decades across America and one year in the ARC's Greater Alleghenies Region, which encompasses all of Garrett County. "We've been amazed at how the Garrett County community has embraced double red cell donation since its inception here earlier this year, and are hoping the turnout for both this 'new' and the whole blood donation processes continue to grow," remarked Denise Ann Todero, Automated Red Cells Program specialist for the American Red Cross. "We specifically chose Garrett County for the process because of the generousity of the

What is it?

Double red cell technology is an automated form of donation that allows the Red Cross to collect two units of red blood cells in one donation, making it more convenient for donors to help save lives in fewer blood drive visits. For example, a person who donates blood via the whole blood donation process can do so once every 56 days, which works out to six sessions per year. A volunteer for a double red blood cell donation gives two units at one time, and is eligible to donate once every 112 days which works out to three blood drive visits per year while helping the same amount or even more patients

How does it work?

The process of collecting double red cells differs from collecting whole blood because it is done on an automated machine. Like a whole blood donation, a donor's blood is drawn through one arm and channeled through a sterile, single-use tubing kit; however, the kit is connected to an automated machine rather than a blood bag. The machine separates and collects the most needed components - in this case, two units of red blood cells - and then safely returns the remaining blood components back to the donor through the same arm.

Is it safe?

As always, donor and patient safety are the top priorities of the American Red Cross, according to Todero. The automated system of double red blood cell process is designed specifically to assure donors don't give too much blood; in fact, the total volume of the donation is slightly less than that of a single whole blood donation.

Does it feel any differently than a whole blood donation? "You may even feel better after a double red blood cell donation," Todero said. "First, we return all your plasma and platelets, plus 500 milliliters of saline. This way, you never lose the liquid portion of your blood, which is responsible for carrying the nutrients throughout your body Second, this procedure uses a smaller needle than blood collection, so double red cell donation may be comfortable for you. Some donors claim they feel better after a double red blood cell donation than they felt earlier in the same day."

Does it take longer than giving whole blood?

Yes. The donation of one unit of blood via a whole blood donation can take 7-12 minutes, with the entire visit usually taking approximately 60-75 minutes. A donation of two units of red cells by the double red blood cell method takes approximately 35-45 minutes. A visit takes approximately 90 minutes; possibly less if the suggested appointment is made ahead of time. Walk-in donors interested in making a double red blood cell donation are accepted if they meet eligibility requirements, and there is an opening in the schedule.

Who is eligible?

Donor eligibility for double red cell collection is different than for a whole blood donation, and varies by sex of the donor. Males must weigh at least 150 pounds and must be at least 5'-1" tall; while females must be at least 175 pounds and stand at least 5'-5" tall. All donors will be required to have at least a 40 percent hematocrit, which is the percentage of iron content in the red blood cells. The hematocrit percentage is determined with the same "fingerprick" blood test that precedes a whole blood dona-

Diabetes is a chronic condition that affects the way the carbohydrates we consume are handled by the body. The effect of diabetes on the way proteins and fats are metabolized is important in considering the overall health of persons who are affected. The diagnosis, management, and testing for diabetes has changed drastically in the past 5 years. Primarily because of the presence of side effects of the disease, the minimum blood sugar level at which diabetes is diagnosed has been lowered significantly. The prevalence of this condition, however, continues to increase. There are now an estimated 10.4 million Americans with diabetes and approximately 5.4 million with diabetes yet to be diagnosed.

A number of recent developments have occurred that have improved the management of diabetes. The cholesterollowering drug atorvastatin seems to prevent heart disease and increase lifespan in diabetics. An inhaled insulin medication named Exubera has performed well in clinical trials and is expected to be approved as a needle-less alternative fol diabetics who need insulin daily. Finally, the antidepressant drug duloxetine was recently approved as a treatment for pain associated with nerve damage in diabetics, making it the first drug ever approved for this complication of diabetes.

help more patients in one donation, would you?

There are several donor benefits when donating two units of red blood cells, including:

- Smaller needles are used in automated collection machines;
- Your remaining components and saline are returned to you after your donation, which some donors claim makes them feel better than when they came in:
- Two units of red cells collected at the same time mean less trips to the blood center, even though you're still saving lives;
- Less trips to the blood center mean less paperwork and fewer needlesticks.

Patients and families will also benefit, because...

- Patients are receiving your life-saving gift, and double red cells help ensure that your blood center is collecting enough of the right type of red cells to help prevent blood shortages.
- Patient family and friends benefit, knowing they will share another day with their loved one.

Triple A Reminds Motorists To Be Alert, Don't Get Hurt

TOWSON (December 30, 2004) - December 31st marks the end of National in distracting activities Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month and AAA Mid-Atlantic is warning motorists to celebrate and travel with care.

More than 60 percent of traffic fatalities for the New Year's holiday, according to the most recent data available from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration [NHTSA] were alcohol-related.

"Drinking and driving is not only a crime, but it is highly preventable," said Chuck Jackson, manager of Public and Government Relations for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "If you're making plans for New Year's celebrations and you plan to celebrate with alcohol, plan on having alternative transportation such as a taxi, mass transit or designated driver."

With a projected number of one million Maryland residents taking driving vacations of 50 miles or more this holiday season, AAA Mid-Atlantic is offering the following facts about drunk and drugged driving:

* Liquor has a cumulative effect, because it is absorbed immediately, especially by the brain, but burned off slowly.

* Liquor has a cumulative effect, because it is absorbed immediately, especially by the brain, but burned off slowly. * Two drinks an hour over six hours leaves the average drinkers blood alcohol level at 0.191, twice over the legal limit. * Alcohol effects can vary depending on medication, stress level and other factors. * Alcohol slows the brain and spinal cord activity, acting like an anesthetic and reducing reaction time. * Alcohol acts like a muscle relaxant, hindering eye muscles, coordination and sending a fuzzy images and double images to the brain. Drowsy and distracted driving can also contribute to injuries on the roadways. Effective drivers are both alert and fully concentrated on the task. AAA Mid-Atlantic offers the following

* Take a break every two to three hours when driving long distances to stretch your legs.

* Avoid driving through the night.

* If you find yourself in a half-dozing state, pull off the road to a safe location such as a rest stop or mall parking lot to take a short nap. Falling asleep behind the wheel is deadly, and so are the five minutes before you nod off.

* Rotate driving duties among adults to help everyone stay fresh.

LEAP SECOND

O. I've heard that just at midnight on December 31, there is one second added to the length of the year. Why? Isn't that kind of overdoing it on precision timing?

You definitely heard right: There IS one additional second put in to the final minute of the year. And while nobody's watch keeps time that precisely, there are good scientific reasons for including that correction once a year.

A standard day contains 86,400 seconds (60 x 60 x 24). A 365-day year therefore contains 31,536,000 seconds. So a one-second correction is about one part in 30 million. Not exactly enough to bother re-setting your watch over.

This entire issue arises because the measurement of time is extremely precise, and is used to standardize a lot of experiments. If time were allowed to drift around, even by a tiny amount, it would eventually cause problems.

The definition of a "day" is based on the rotation of the earth, and that refers to the astronomical time scale. The definition of a "second," however, is associated with an atomic clock, and that gives us the atomic time scale. Since the invention of the laser (in the 1960s), it has been possible for any good science laboratory to have an excellent time standard by building their own atomic clock, making use of cesium vapor. An atom of a cesium-133 isotope vibrates at a precisely known rate, and so 9,192,631,770 oscillations is defined as one second. With that number agreed upon internationally, scientists everywhere can conduct experiments without fear of disagreement over their time scales.

Meanwhile, the speed of rotation of the earth varies a little bit from time to time, owing to wobbling on the axis, magnetic forces deep within the earth's core, etc. When the new definition of the second went into effect (1967), they tried their best to match it to the earth's rotation, the duration of an average solar day. But "average" doesn't quite cut it when it comes to precision measurements. Lately (i.e., recent decades) the accumulated error has added up to about one second per year. So a correction is

The National Institutes of Standards and Technology website explains the correction as follows.

"A leap second is a second added to Coordinated Universal Time (UTC) to make it agree with astronomical time (UT1) to within 0.9 second. UTC is an atomic time scale, based on the performance of atomic clocks. Astronomical time is based on the rate of rotation of the earth. Since atomic clocks are more stable than the rate at which the earth rotates, leap seconds are needed to keep the two time scales in agreement....Currently the difference between UT1 and UTC is changing at a rate of about 2 to 3 milliseconds per day, which makes a leap second necessary at an average interval of slightly more than 1 year."

You could say "why not just lengthen the definition of a second to make the year come out right?" In principle, that could be done: redefining the new second as 9,192,632,032 oscillations of the cesium isotope would indeed result in having a conventional year (31,536,000.0 new seconds) go by in 31,536,000.9 of today's seconds.

The trouble is, you'd throw off a lot of precise scientific measurements by changing the definition of the second, which would create uncertainty and error unnecessarily. It would affect length measurements, frequency measurements, and many other things. For example, on a typical CD, there are several billion bits, so a change in the time standard of about one part in 30 million would introduce reading errors. There is an awful lot at stake in holding the definition of the second to a single agreed-upon num-

APPRECIATION WAS EXPRESSED once again by the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department recently to local beverage distributors for their support and donations to the OVFD's annual Oktoberfest, held for the past 27 years as part of the Autumn Glory Festival. Pictured from left above are: John Feather, OVFD chief; Roger Ruff, owner of Midway Beverages; Kevin, Cathy, and Scott Lohr of Lohr Distributors; and Dennis Murray; OVFD assistant chief. The Oktoberfest is one of several OVFDsponsored, fundraising events held during the Autumn Glory Festival.

Moreover, the wobble of the earth's axis might change a little more, and make the average length of a day greater or smaller. That would require more "leap seconds" or perhaps no "leap second" at all. So it would be a bad bet to fool around with the duration of the second, when the rotation-rate of the earth varies a lot more than the oscillatory behavior of an atom.

The needed annual correction is about 9/10 seconds, not a full second. Consequently, sometime during the next decade there will be a New Year's Eve that doesn't contain a leap second. Meanwhile, this year at least, you'll have to wait one more second before kissing your weetheart at the stroke of midnight.

Sarbanes Praises Release Of Energy Assistance Funds

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services is planning to release $100 million in federal funding for the low-income home energy assistance program (LIHEAP), Senator Paul Sarbanes announced last week. Of that funding, Maryland is expected to receive more than $1.77 million.

Sarbanes said he has been pressing administration officials for the past several months and as recently as Dec. 21 to release additional monies for those who are struggling to pay for higher heating costs this winter.

According to the Energy Information Administration, it is predicted that heating a home with natural gas will cost an average of $1,010 this winter; heating oil will cost $1,114; and heating with propane will cost $1,335.

Compared to the average. heating costs from 1998 to it is ter are expected to be 49 ity or reduce benefit levels under the LIHEAP program, Sarbanes noted.

"We have already seen wind chill temperatures in the single digits and heating bills on the rise," the senator said, "so it is critically important that we have the funds available to assist those who may experience hardships as a result of extreme conditions or economic situations."

"For those living on fixed incomes or for those unemployed, the last thing we need is for people to have to choose between heating their homes or buying food and 1 medicines for themselves or their children" Sarbanes added. "I am pleased that the administration has released this much needed funding to enable those to cope during these harsh weather periods."

by Dr. Virginia Broaddus Dean of Academic Affairs

For me, New Year's resolutions are easy to keep, at east when they pertain to Garrett College

For instance, this New Year I'm determined to take dvantage of some of our Continuing Education division's opportunities. Doing so won't be hard, given the array of choices Lowell Bender and his program directors provide for the community. From the Grantsville Outreach Center to the Oakland Armory to the McHenry campus, classes abound, including the Grantsville Center's Medical Coding program, sure to be a success. McHenry's Center for Lifelong Learning, on the other hand, could give me a chance to explore all kinds of neat classes, including memoir writing as well as a brief "minimester" that will offer several classes within a compressed schedule later this year. I'm most resolved, though, to take advantage of the Continuing Education division's Ed2Go, which offers dozens of classes online, letting me learn in my own time and in my own home and allowing me to gain new skills or to brush up on others. In my case, I'm looking forward to fine-tuning my computer skills.

Of course, I could fine-tune my skills through our credit division, too. Auditing classes, which would allow me to sit in on classes without taking tests or receiving a grade, is one option; taking classes for credit is another. In either case, I have a dizzying number of options from which to choose. Whether taking courses that lead to Microsoft Certification or those that are focused on financial management, I'd have plenty of choices in our Business and Computer Information Technology division. In our

Fine Arts area, I could take advantage of a range of courses - from Introduction to Stage Design to Drawing to Music in Religious Thought and Practice. Returning to our curriculum this spring is Fiction Writing, taught by Dr. Greg Jenkins and offered in the early evening so that students who work during the day can take advantage of what's sure to be a dynamic class. Other options abound at GC, from American History to Environmental Science to Spanish, from Psychology of Women to The Family to Therapeutic Recreation in addition to a number of on-line offerings. I take great pride in knowing that all of our courses are taught by incredible faculty, some of them part-time, many of them full-time, all of them committed Garrett's student-centered philosophy.

Our student-centered philosophy isn't limited to our faculty, however. It's something in which all of our employees take pride, including those new to Garrett. For instance, our new director of financial aid, Alan Batchelor, brings a history of working closely with students and their families thanks to his years of work at West Virginia University. Alan, who joins Chris Walters and Pam Warnick in our financial aid office, will find GC to be a place proud of its students and eager to support them in their endeavors.

I'm determined, in fact, to continue learning more about our students and their many awesome endeavors, whether undertaken while they're at Garrett or once they've left us. I felt lucky that I could congratulate Amy Tressler in person during her recent break from Oral Roberts University. Amy, who graduated with an associate's degree from Garrett in 2001, received her bachelor's from ORU and is now completing a master's degree in Biblical literature. I know I join her mom, Darlene Preston, in being very proud of her, just as I know Amy joins me in wishing Darlene well: having served on our student assistance center team for many, many years, Darlene has recently chosen to leave GC for other exciting ventures.

New and exciting ventures, I know, abound for many of us at Garrett this year, and I'm anticipating a wonderful 2005 full of new initiatives and ongoing great opportunities. Whether our students are on Adventure Sports Institute trips in the Everglades in January or in Spain for spring break, whether they're studying literature or first aid, and whether they're 16 or 65, they can be in for the (learning) adventure of a lifetime. This year, I'm resolved to continue appreciating not only those adventures but the students, faculty, and staff who undertake them, thus making Garrett not only an incredible small college but also one with big results.

MLP Church To Host Youth New Year's Eve Party

"Living Word," The youth ministry of the Mt. Top Christian Assembly of God Church, has slated a New Year's Eve party from 9 a.m., Friday, Dec. 31, to 7 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 1, for middle school through college-age students.

The theme of the free event, which will take place in the church basement, is "Jesus the Rock - Rockin' New Year's Eve." Among the activities will be electronic basketball, table tennis, air hockey, Foosball, and assorted board games. There will also be music, videos, and giveaways including a hooded sweatshirt, T-shirts, jewelry and Christian music CDs. At 9:30 p.m. local Christian artist Amy McConnell will perform a "mini-concert." Snacks and sodas will be available for purchase.

"The evening will provide an opportunity for students to celebrate in a safe, sober, and drug free environment," said Living Word Youth Ministry pastor Cyndi Tichnell.

The Mt. Top Christian Assembly Church is located along Maryland Highway in Mtn. Lake Park, next to 84 Lumber. For further information, persons may call Tichnell at 301-334-9263.

JOHNSON NAMED PAUL HARRIS FELLOW -Joan Johnson, Oakland, was named a Paul Harris Fellow of the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International at a holiday banquet held recently at the Red Run Inn. She is pictured above with her husband Offutt. Johnson, a member of the Oakland Rotary Club, received the recognition from Kathy Zimmerman, the chairperson of the club's Paul Harris committee. Johnson joins approximately 750,000 Paul Harris Fellows, named in honor of the Chicago lawyer who founded Rotary International in 1905, according to a Rotary spokesperson. The recognition is given to individuals who contribute $1,000 or in whose behalf such a contribution is made to the Rotary Foundation for its international humanitarian and educational programs. Zimmerman said the contribution to the foundation was made by the Oakland Rotary Club in recognition of "the significant contributions that Joan has made during her membership in the Rotary Club." Johnson has held the position of secretary for the club since becoming a member. As the secretary, she has been responsible for weekly attendance and bulletins for the club. In addition she coordinated the registration for the 2004 District 7350 conference, held at the Wisp Resort in McHenry. Johnson thanked the club for all of their support, and especially thanked her husband, who is "very understanding and has taken many, many Rotary phone messages over the past few years."

THE SUN - The sun spends the first 18 days of January in the star group Sagittarius. On January 19 the sun enters the star group Capricornus, where it will remain until mid-February. The amount of daily sunlight slowly grows in January, from about 9 hours and 25 minutes to 10 hours and 10 minutes by month's end. In early January the sun rises about 7:40 a.m., and sets around 5:05 p.m. In late January sunrises are about 7:27 a.m. while sunsets are about 5:37 p.m. The sun's midday height during January grows from 27 to 33 degrees (30 degrees is 1/3 of the way from the horizon to the top of the sky). In January the length of twilight is an hour, meaning that the fainter stars fade from view about an hour before sunrise and the fainter stars reappear an hour after sunset. In mid- January, we have about 12.2 hours each night for star gazing.

THE MOON - As January begins, the moon shines in the late evening sky. After January 2 the moon shifts into the morning sky, then most easily viewed at dawn. On January 8 the crescent moon appears near the brilliant planet Venus and the planet Mercury, very low in the 6:45 a.m. eastern dawn. On the days around January 10 (new moon) the moon hides in the sun's glare. On January 12 the moon reappears as a narrow crescent low in the western dusk. By January 16 the moon has grown to half full, appearing as a letter "D," the best moon shape to view the craters with binoculars. On January 23 the moon appears close to the bright planet Saturn. The moon is nearly full on the evenings of January 25-26, then shining among the stars of Cancer. In late January the moon shines in the late evening sky

THE SOLAR SYSTEM - Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steady, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. The brilliant planet Venus is spectacular as it hangs low in the eastern dawn in the first half of January. Also near Venus is the fainter planet Mercury. Above and to the right of Venus is the planet Mars. The planet Jupiter is in Virgo, and can be seen low in the east around midnight in late January. The planet Saturn is Gemini, near the bright stars Pollux and Castor. Throughout January Saturn is high enough above the horizon for good telescopic viewing of its rings in the

THE STARS - In January the new arrival in the evening sky is the brilliant star Sirius, the night's brightest star. Orion's belt of three stars in a row points down and left to Sirius, seen low in the southeast. The Big Dipper is again prominent in the north-northeast with its top two stars pointing left to the North Star, a modest star about halfway up in the northern sky. At dawn the stars then on display match the stars of early summer evenings. Low in the northeast is the bright star Vega. High in the north is the Big Dipper. Extend the Dipper's handle outward and you'll come to Arcturus, a bright golden star nearly over-

Tes, the ringing in of a brand new year is at hand; and with it the resolutions. Perhaps you have collected too much clutter. You have resolved to rid yourself of that unsettled feeling you experience when you enter your home. What will you do with the excess...throw it away...give it away...have a yard sale?

You may be feeling the same confusion in your life. Today's world is a barrage of input that seems to clutter our very souls. How will you decide what is worth retaining?

Ben Jonson, renowned seventeenth century dramatist, poet, and wit, advised, "Weigh the meaning and look not at the words." We must prioritize this information. What is most important to know in order to live a useful, peaceful, and joyous life?

God's Word should be of utmost consideration when we establish these priorities, for our understanding of God's Word sets the stage for our life. When we follow His advice, everything else falls into place. We know what is important and what is not. The result is a sense of peace and joy, even amid the confusion of life. In Romans 14: 19 we read, "Let us then pursue what makes for peace...".

Won't you begin this year with worship in God's House? It is the best resolution of them all.

These firms invite you to a House of Worship each week

And most importantly, if the values underlying last year were mostly things like losing weight, quitting smoking, amassing more wealth, or getting ahead in our career, then despite being acceptable goals, they were for the most part self-centered and not particularly virtuous ones. Perhaps this year we should focus on what we can do to make life better for those around us. for our community, or for the world at large. What can we do to help our community? In most areas, there are lots of volunteer opportunities available that require relatively little sacrifice. And, in addition to helping others, perhaps we can work on our relationships rather than ourselves. Surprisingly we might just find that helping others and

Caffeine Produces A Wide Range Of Effects

Caffeine is a bitter tasting substance that most people associate with their morning coffee. Widely accepted as an energy booster and central nervous system stimulant, caffeine also has been shown to increase the pain reducing effects of common analgesics by up to 40%. The Food and Drug Administration has approved the use of caffeine in combination with aspirin and Tylenol for the treatment of migraine headaches. Many traditional overthe-counter headache preparations contain caffeine as an active ingredient. Some studies have shown that moderate caffeine intake can speed up reaction times and improve problem solving skills, even after sleep

Caffeine also can have positive effects on the respiratory system. Research shows that oral caffeine consumption can improve airway function in diabetics for up to four hours. Some studies suggest that drinking 3 to 4 cups of caffeinated coffee each day may lower the risk of developing Parkinson's disease. Precautions with high amounts of caffeine intake include potential loss of calcium and psychological dependence.

EWE LAMB PROGRAM DEADLINE

The Preston County Farm Service Agency informs producers that sign-up ends on Thursday, Jan. 13, 2005, for the $18 million Ewe Lamb Replacement and Retention Payment Program (ELRRPP), which pays producers to expand their ewe lamb breeding stock. Sign-up for the program began Oct. 25.

By increasing the value and number of domestic lambs, this program will help our nation's sheep operations achieve sustained market competitiveness.

An estimated 66,800 sheep and lamb operations in the United States have experienced long-term poor market conditions, which has led to reduced incomes. Increased imports and extreme drought conditions in domestic sheep-producing areas have forced producers to decrease production and flock size. The 2003 lamb production is expected to total 4.13 million, down five percent from

ELRRPP, which is authorized by Section 32 of the Act of Aug. 24, 1935, as amended, will strengthen the lamb by hoosting the nurchasing nower of producers including their ability to invest in larger and geneticallyimproved breeding stocks.

ELRRPP payments are expected to begin the end of January. Subject to the availability of funds, producers will receive $18 for each qualifying ewe lamb retained or purchased for breeding purposes during a specified period. If the amount of approved applications exceeds available funding, USDA will uniformly apply a national factor to reduce payments to producers.

An eligible producer must have purchased or retained ewe lambs for breeding purposes between Aug. 1, 2003, and July 31, 2004, and must have retained the qualifying ewe lambs in the herd for at least one complete offspring lambing cycle. The producer must not have received funds under the USDA Lamb Meat Adjustment Assistance Program for the same ewe lamb.

In addition, during at least part of the base period (Aug. 1, 2003 to July 31, 2004), qualifying ewe lambs must not have been older than 18 months and must not have produced an offspring. Other conditions apply as provided for in the program regulations and application.

Producers must apply for the program by completing form FSA-384, "Ewe Lamb Replacement/Retention Payment Program Application." This form is available at the FSA office and on the USDA web site at http:\\forms.sc.egov.usda.gov\eforms\mainservlet.

Additional information on ELRRLP is available at the Preston County FSA office, which is located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza. Program specifics are also available on the Farm Service Agency web site at www.fsa.usda.gov.

Real Estate Facts by...

A PRICING PITFALL!

Ready to sell, but confused about pricing? No matter what you hear elsewhere, pay close attention to any advice that a real estate professional offers. Remember that the agent doesn't set the price you do. Make sure you understand all the facts before making your decision.

Would you think that a home that sells in just a few days was probably underpriced? You'd be wrong - obviously, the home was perfectly priced! If the sellers and the buyers did their homework, they probably found out exactly what other homes in the area listed for, sold for, and didn't sell for. Homes priced at "fair market value" stand a great chance for an early sale.

If you begin by asking for more than the home is worth, you'll be cheating yourself out of consideration by serious, qualified buyers who know better. You'll get less interest, less offers, lower offers, or even worse you could accept an offer that will be later withdrawn when the lender discovers that the appraised value came in lower than the asking price.

The real proof that a quick sale wasn't priced too low is the homes in the neighborhood that haven't sold yet or have "expired." Ask the agent for those prices and then you'll understand how pricing correctly from the get-go results in a full price sale in the shortest time.

If you'd like to sell your home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE

Roadside attractions sometimes try to bring customers in by advertising freaks of the animal world, but many # if not most - of them are faked. (For example, the Jackalope out West, the Fur-Bearing Trout in the Northern Plains states and the Merman in Hot Springs, Ark.) There are, however, actual examples of mutated animals and some of them can be found at an institute called Prairie Dog Town, in Oakley, Kan. There visitors can see a five-legged cow and a six-legged steer — both living animals. Mounted on the wall in the gift shop is a stuffed two-headed calf that was preserved after its early death.

Pets Are Vulnerable During Cold Weather

. I recently read about how on · really cold days, humans can experience the early symptoms of hypothermia even when going about their daily business. Are animals susceptible to hypothermia? I would think they wouldn't be because of their fur. - Tamara C., Columbus, Ohio

. Unfortunately, despite their fur A coats, animals of all shapes and sizes, wild or tame, are susceptible to injury from the cold. These injuries include hypothermia (lowered body temperature), cuts and gashes from jagged ice or frozen debris, and frozen extremities (especially paws).

Wild animals will look for shelter from storms and bitter cold because their fur doesn't completely protect them. Those that don't hibernate through the winter season search for food when they feel it's safe, but it can be days before they are able to move around safely.

Domestic animals, like dogs and cats, are really not able to take care of themselves as effectively as wild ani mals. They already have a very nice "den" (your home), so they don't have to search for one. Food is readily available, so they don't have to hunt. In addition, they face a host of manmade dangers in their urban or suburban environment.

Protect your pet from the cold as best as possible. If your cat likes to go outside in the snow, send him to the back yard, but check on him frequently; he may ask to come back in much sooner than usual. When taking your dog for a walk, place protective booties on her paws to prevent cold injuries; wrap a doggie sweater around her torso on especially cold days, even if she's a large dog.

If your pet spends a lot of time outdoors in winter (and isn't on a prescribed diet), increase his or her food intake to ensure plenty of energy is available to burn.

. I have what I believe is a . "wanted" poster for Cole Younger. Who can I contact to authenticate it? - Lloyd, North

. Before I answer your ques-A tion, let's have a little history

Cole Younger was born in Harrisonville, Mo., in 1844. After serving in the Confederate Army, he joined a band of guerilla fighters led by William Quantrill. Other members included both Jessie and Frank James. In 1866, Younger had a relationship with Belle Starr. Although she later gave birth to a daughter, Pearl, it is unclear if Younger was the father of the child.

Beginning in 1866, Younger participated in numerous criminal acts, including at least 12 bank robberies and seven stage holdups. On Sept. 7, 1876, the James Gang attempted to rob a bank in Northfield, Minn. During the raid, the bank's cashier was killed. Cole Younger was eventually arrested.

Although reward posters were published during this period, they are extremely rare. To find out if the one you have is the real McCoy, you might want to contact James Aplan, 21424 Clover Place, Piedmont, SD 57769. Aplan is a serious collector and dealer of Western Americana and can help you.

Hey, 'Joan of Arcadia': Who's your daddy?

By Jay Bobbin O Zap2it

Q: Is Amber Tamblyn of "Joan of Arcadia" the daughter of Russ Tamblyn of the movie "West Side Story"? -Betsy Viana, McKinney, Texas.

A: Indeed she is. In fact, her dad has guest starred in several episodes of the CBS show.

Q: Since "dr. vegas" has been canceled, should we expect Sarah Lancaster to return to "Everwood"? -Will, Atlanta.

A: Nothing was firm at this writing, but we wouldn't rule it out, especially since her "Everwood" character, Madison, is still mentioned if not seen on The WB Network show. Before CBS gave "dr. vegas" its last spin. Lancaster - who is absolutely charming, we might add - told us she would love to return to the Utah set of "Everwood" anytime. since she is very fond of the cast and crew members. stay tuned. Q: My family missed the show "When Angels Come to Town" with Peter Falk. We heard it was a good show, and he is one of my favorites. Do you know if this show will be repeated? If not, why not? -Marty E., Hicksville, N.Y.

A: Easy there ... let's give CBS a chance first. The network tends to repeat any of its new holiday TV movies at least once during the following season, especially if it's a ratings hit like this one We'd be willing to bet that the film will resurface next holiday

Forsythe) and his clearly dysfunctional family. The show strongly echoed Bill Clinton's rise to national political prominence, and the scripts often invoked his name

The sterling cast couldn't be faulted for the show's relatively short life; Forsythe's wife was played by later Emmy winner Holland Taylor ("The Practice"), with a pre-"Frasier" David Hyde Pierce as their son-in-law and Peter MacNicol ("Ally McBeal") as the senator's press secretary. O: I've been waiting to see season three of "Dark Angel," but it hasn't appeared. Why is that? -Stephanie Alaniz, Anchorage, Alaska.

A: That's easy: A third year was never ordered by Fox. Produced by Oscar-winning "Titanic" filmmaker James Cameron, the two existing seasons of the adventure show about geneticexperiment heroine Max (Jessica Alba) are available on DVD from 20th Century Fox Home Entertainment.
